NEUTRALITY ACT REPEAL WAVERS

WASHINGTON (CP)—The Roosevelt administration ran into unexpected opposition in the House of Representatives this afternoon in its attempt to repeal all major elements of the Neutrality Act and tonight it was regarded as a touch and go proposition whether it would pass.

There was an unexpected defection on the part of a group of southern Democrats.

The measure has already passed the Senate.

Arias Changes Mind

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. Arnulfo Arias, deposed president of Panama, has given up any intention he might have had to live in Canada; it was learned this afternoon.

Plane Output Mounts

OTTAWA (CP)—Munitions Minister Howe told the Commons this afternoon that a total of 4,471 aircraft completed in Canada since the outbreak of war, 2,228 were manufactured in Canada and 2,243 assembled in the Dominion.

No Conscription Talk

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in the Commons late today that a news service which distributed a report (not carried by the Canadian Press) that he had discussed Canadian conscription with Prime Minister Winston Churchill should make an apology.

Sunk by Axis?

LONDON (CP)—The Admiralty said tonight it had received reports that the 6,000-ton Spanish steamship Castilla Cropan had been torpedoed off Melilla, Spanish Morocco, and added "no British submarine was within 100 miles" of that Spanish Moroccan port at the time.

Nazis Attack

LONDON (AP)—German attacks on the right flank of the Russian defenses at Kalinin, 95 miles northwest of Moscow, have been continuing in unabated strength for four days, the Moscow radio stated tonight.

The Germans were said to be massing reserves and throwing every available resource into an attempt to capture point "B."

Lapointe in Hospital

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Lapointe is in a Montreal hospital, it was learned this afternoon, but the nature of his illness was not disclosed.

No Greek Government To Release Ss. Boris

OTTAWA (CP)—Inability to find a Greek government with authority is preventing the Canadian government from taking over the Greek freighter Boris, loaded with 7,500 tons of steel scrap and docked at Victoria, B.C., Munitions Minister Howe told the House of Commons Tuesday night.

Mr. Howe, replying to a question by Tom Reid (Liberal, New Westminster), said his department was "very much interested" in the ship and its cargo.

"Greece, of course, is not an enemy of Canada," Mr. Howe explained. "It is an ally, and as yet we have not been able to find a Greek government which can release the ship to Canada. We are hardly justified in seizing it from a friend, and we cannot buy it."

HUNTZIGER KILLED

VICHY (AP)—Gen. Charles Huntziger, Vichy's War Minister, was burned to death today when a plane in which he was returning to Vichy from a tour of north Africa crashed in southern France.

Seven other persons lost their lives.

Death of the general, who signed the 1940 armistice between Germany and France, was reported shortly after officials had made known their concern for him.

His plane had been missing more than seven hours.

During his tour of African desert, Huntziger visited Dakar.

Russian Time Bombs Blast Conquered Kiev

Victims' tongues of flame lash past torn Nazi banner and fallen electric lines as building in the heart of captured Kiev goes up in a spectacular fire. Russian time bombs, for which Germans futilely combed the city, fire and destroy parts of the Ukraine capital several weeks after it fell to Hitler's armies.

Meighen Still Undecided

TORONTO (CP)—Senator Meighen's decision whether to accept the Conservative leadership is not expected for two or three days.

John R. Macnicol, chairman of the three-man committee which presented the party's call to Meighen, maintained confidence that the ultimate answer would be "Yes."

LOOKING FOR FUNDS

By NORMAN MACLEOD
OTTAWA—Committee that spent yesterday trying to persuade Senator Meighen to accept the Conservative leadership, had two arguments:

1. That under Senator Meighen the Conservative party would be able to apply pressure to obtain an all-out war effort.
2. That with him at the head, organization funds would flow freely into the party chests.

If the Liberal government doesn't like the prospect of Senator Meighen in the Commons, the Liberals have none but themselves to blame. They brought it on themselves, federal circles here point out, when they announced the economic program of "ceilings" on price and cost-of-living bonuses throughout industry with the freezing of wages.

Politicians were quick to become aware that business circles across Canada were staggered by the price and wages policies to a degree which they did not reveal in their public pronouncements. They said little, but commended to engineer changes in the Conservative leadership to bring in a man like Senator Meighen who would head off the legislative trend that was becoming wholly alarming.

Full Strength

OTTAWA (CP)—Reserve army units throughout Canada have been authorized to recruit to full war strength and pay will be provided for the full strength of the unit for the remainder of the training year, it was learned today at National Defence headquarters.

Previously pay was only provided for 50 per cent of each unit's personnel. The new training year ends March 31.

Nazis Reach Black Sea German Moscow Drive Fought to Standstill

Associated Press
Russian reports today stated Red forces had battled the Germans to a standstill on the central front with more than 70,000 Nazis killed and wounded in the 41-day-old drive on Moscow. At the same time Hitler's Crimean armies were reported by the German high command to have reached the Black Sea coast just below Kerch, gateway to the Caucasus oil fields.

Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper, said Russian infantry, artillery and tanks smashing into the flank of two German divisions on the outskirts of Tula, 100 miles south of Moscow, had put the invaders to rout and chased them for more than five miles.

The German threat to Sebastopol was apparently increasing. The Russians acknowledging they had withdrawn from the rail town of Bakhchisarai, 30 miles northeast of the big Black Sea naval base.

On the central front, S. A. Lovovsky, Soviet spokesman, declared the position of the Red armies before Moscow was "considerably better" and that Hitler's six-week-old offensive against the capital had failed.

The Russians said Hitler threw 19 divisions—about 285,000 troops—as well as 1,000 tanks and 900 planes into the drive starting October 2 and planned to enter the capital on October 16.

Hit by terrific losses, the Germans were now reported bringing up masses of fresh reserves to meet fierce Soviet counterattacks.

Nazi military dispatches acknowledged that a fantastic system of underground tank garages, rows of buried flame-throwers and huge mine fields around Moscow's 200-mile defence arc made the going slow and hazardous.

Nazis Flee Without Wounded, Material

Red Star said the Nazis abandoned arms and ammunition in their flight, leaving more than 500 slain, many wounded and 25 burned-out tanks. Only the arrival of reinforcements rushed up in trucks enabled the Germans to restore "some kind of balance," the newspaper said.

On the Ukraine front, Soviet correspondents said the Donets River basin was "engulfed in fire... conflagrations raging everywhere... pillars of flame and black smoke rising high to the skies."

On the whole, the Russians reflected growing confidence both in the Donets' conflict and before Moscow.

Soviet dispatches admitted, however, that German troops had advanced to the vicinity of Narofominsk, 35 miles southwest of Moscow, but said the situation had been stabilized. The Germans said their advanced forces were within 31 miles of Moscow at one point.

A bulletin from Hitler's field headquarters said German and Rumanian troops had planted their battle flags on the eastern shore of the Crimea after "sharp pursuit fighting," and Nazi front-line dispatches claimed that Kerch itself was jammed with "beating" Red Army troops.

If true the arrival of Axis forces along the Kerch Strait would mean a critical stage had been reached in the battle of the Crimea. Beyond the strait, on the Caucasian mainland, are situated the great wells providing much of Russia's oil supply.

Claim Kerch Sebastopol Hit

The Germans claimed their dive bombers were inflicting havoc both at Kerch and Sebastopol, destroying fort facilities and causing great losses in men and material.

Step Up Drive On Leningrad

Finland's decision to fight on as an ally of Germany—despite U.S. State Secretary Hull's warning that by doing so she would forfeit United States friendship—was paced by a mounting German threat against Leningrad.

Nazi dispatches said the German northern armies had followed up the capture of Tikhvin, 110 miles southwest of Leningrad, by a further sweep north toward Lake Ladoga, aimed at completing the encirclement of the old Soviet capital.

Naval College For Canada Coming Here?

Navy Minister Macdonald's announcement in the House of Commons Tuesday that a Royal Canadian Naval College will be opened on the Pacific coast next year today revived the expectancy that the college would be located at Victoria.

The minister did not reveal the exact location of the college in his statement before the House, but explained that the west coast had been chosen because weather conditions were more favorable to winter training.

The opinion here is the college, which will be for training of Royal Canadian Navy personnel, will be established at the site of H.M.C.S. Royal Roads, where training for the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve has been under way for some time.

Selection of students for the Royal Canadian Naval College on this coast, Mr. Macdonald announced, will be made on similar lines to that of the Royal Military College at Kingston, Ont.

The naval students, who will number 100, will be representative of all the Canadian provinces and cadetships will also follow provincial divisions.

The college prospectus is now in course of preparation. The naval college course will be of one year's duration for older boys and two years for younger boys, Mr. Macdonald said. Broadly speaking, at least junior matriculation will be required for entrance.

No Conscription While King Leads

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King late today told the House of Commons he stood by his government's policy of compulsory service for home defence, but that the decision against conscription for overseas services had been made by the Canadian people at the last general election.

By NORMAN MACLEOD
OTTAWA—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King has told the Liberal caucus that so long as he is head of the government there will be no conscription in Canada.

The news, closely guarded by government followers for some days, but now revealed and admitted, has created a profound impression in political circles. It is recognized as tremendously increasing the federal tension in the light of a situation which is expected daily to witness the return of Senator Meighen to the active political scene as the rallying figure for a national government crusade, which presumably will have conscription inevitably in its background.

Sidney Man Honored At R.A.F. Ceremony

Gallantry of L.A.C. J. P. Speedie, Sidney man serving with the R.A.F.—in helping to save a man from drowning in England, was recognized at a ceremony at the Pat Bay station today when he was presented with a Royal Humane Society certificate.

The presentation was made by the officer commanding Group Capt. P. D. Robertson. The courageous act for which Speedie was honored occurred while he was stationed in England with the R.A.F. Seeing a man in danger of drowning in Solway Firth—Burgh—Byrads, Cumberland, he swam to his rescue and helped him to shore.

L.A.C. Speedie is back in his home town after thousands of miles of travel. With his brother he went to England prior to the outbreak of war to join the R.A.F. Since then they have been transferred to Patricia Bay, close to Sidney, the place from which they started.

Withholds Statement

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King this afternoon declined to make any definite statement of possible government policy in the event of a declaration of war between the United States and Japan.

Answering Dr. H. A. Bruce, Conservative, Toronto-Parkdale, he said:

"The attitude of Canada toward the United States and toward Britain, and toward relations between Britain and the United States, is well known throughout Canada and I think I may say throughout the world." Mr. King said, adding that no further comment was considered advisable at this time.

Dies on Beach

CAMPBELL RIVER, B.C. (CP)—George Stafford, elderly pensioner who at one time worked in logging camps along the Vancouver Island coast, collapsed on the beach near his home today and died before medical help could reach him. He was a well-known old-timer of the district.

Teachers May Strike

SASKATOON (CP)—Majority of 125 Moose Jaw public and high school teachers indicated in a strike ballot early this week their willingness to walk out to obtain a partial restoration of salary deductions made in the depression years, according to information released here today by the central office of the Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation.

Gondar Surrounded

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony (AP)—The British East African command tonight announced the British and native Ethiopian forces had completed the encirclement of Gondar in northern Ethiopia and had captured Ganda.

Churchill Says

Hitler's Submarines Fail; Invasion Gamble Next?

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill declared today Hitler had failed to bring Britain to her knees through a starvation blockade and thus might be forced into attempting invasion "as soon as he can screw up his courage and make arrangements to take the plunge." (Text of speech page 2.)

The Prime Minister told a cheering House of Commons at the opening of the new session that it had been learned through Britain's No. 1 prisoner, Rudolf Hess, who flew from Germany to Scotland, "that Hitler originally counted more on starvation of the British than on invasion."

Any such hopes, Mr. Churchill declared, crumbled through an improvement in Britain's shipping situation. This was highlighted by the Prime Minister's report that:

1. "In 1943 we shall have sufficient shipping to undertake overseas operations."
2. Almost 1,000,000 tons of Axis shipping were sent to the bottom or damaged seriously in the four months ended in October.
3. During that same period Britain's shipping losses dropped almost two-thirds.

Big Reduction In Ship Losses

He said British losses for July, August, September and October totaled less than 50,000 tons compared with a total of 2,000,000 tons lost during March, April,

May and June. This was a reduction from an average of 500,000 tons monthly to 180,000 tons.

He would not give figures on the building of new ships, but said that taking new building into consideration the net loss had been reduced in the past four months to a great deal less than one-fifth of what it was in the previous four months.

"This has been done in spite of the fact that there never were more U-boats or more long-range aircraft working than there are now."

The reduction in losses, he went on, gives "solid and sober assurance that we shall be able to maintain our seaborne traffic until the great American shipbuilding, promised for 1942, comes into service."

Improved Food Conditions Foreseen

Speaking with cautious confidence, he promised better food for Britain's workers would result from an improvement in imports and bigger crops at home, but he added:

"Satisfactory as the results are, there must be no relaxation of our efforts, not only because of the ever-present menace to importation from abroad but it may yet be that as the war develops military operations may make more extensive demands upon our shipping."

He did not elaborate the theme to explain whether such military operations might be in Africa or in the movement of troops for action on the Russian front.

No Major Changes In Cabinet Planned

Mr. Churchill flatly told critics he did not intend to change his cabinet one bit "at the present moment."

He promised these critics the "fullest facilities" to debate the war, "not only this week but the whole of next week and into the week thereafter."

Declaring "we are entitled to seek" from the House of Commons "from time to time a formal renewal of their confidence," he said the debate would furnish "a signal opportunity of the year" as a "grand inquest of the nation" into the government and its policies.

In the debate following the Prime Minister's speech, the House was told that "common people swear by" Mr. Churchill "even though they swear at his government."

Full Confidence Of British People

Sir Percy Harris, Liberal, said "the Prime Minister has the complete confidence of the country. His stock never was higher."

Richard A. Pilkington, Conservative, said some criticism of the government had "personal enmity and sour bitterness," and Lord Birdwood, proposed in the House of Lords that military decisions be left to competent authorities.

U.S. Rail Chiefs Order Strike

CHICAGO (AP)—Chiefs of the five operating brotherhoods in the railroad industry of the U.S. ordered their 350,000 members today to strike beginning December 7 for a 30 per cent increase in wages.

The men were instructed to leave their jobs progressively on December 7, 8 and 9.

Instructions to the general chairmen on the conduct of the strike were in the hands of printers this afternoon and were expected to be available later in the week.

Litvinoff Plane Overdue at Teheran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—A Soviet plane with United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt, Maxim Litvinoff, New Soviet ambassador to the United States, and Sir Walter T. Monckton, British information director, was overdue here today, but British sources said it probably had made unscheduled stops.

Bad weather was encountered after the muddy takeoff at Kuibyshev, temporary Soviet capital.

(An earlier dispatch from Kuibyshev, Russia, said Litvinoff, who formerly was Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, today was given the rank of Vice-Commissioner.)

BIOFF SENTENCED TO 10 YEARS

NEW YORK (AP)—Federal Judge John C. Knox today sentenced William Bioff to 10 years in prison and a $20,000 fine, and George E. Browne to eight years and $20,000 for violation of the federal anti-racketeering law.

Browne, former president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, American Federation of Labor, and Bioff, his personal representative, were convicted of extorting about $350,000 from the motion picture industry.

The government charged they had used their labor leadership to extort large sums on threat of strikes.

They were convicted last week on an indictment of three counts, the first two of which charged violation of the federal anti-racketeering law, and the third conspiracy.

Judge Knox sentenced Bioff to 10 years on each count, the sentence on the second to run concurrently with that of the first. He suspended sentence on the third, placing Bioff on parole for 10 years after he serves his time.

The court sentenced Browne to eight years on each of the first two counts, the sentences to run concurrently. As in the case of Bioff, he suspended sentence on the third count and placed Browne on parole for eight years.

Still to be heard from is Trustee W. A. Bayless, the other incumbent whose term expires at the end of the year. Trustee F. A. Willis has already announced his retirement from the educational body to enter the campaign for an aldermanic post.

As a member of some years' experience on the school board, Trustee McMillan offers his services with the conviction the new curriculum and the untiring work of those directly connected with schools are making a definite contribution in social, vocational and spiritual values to students today.

He has been chairman of the building and grounds committee during the term now closing and has been congratulated frequently by his fellow board members on the excellence of the schools' physical condition at the present time.

Churchill Outlines Big Gains in Sea Warfare

LONDON (CP)—The text of Prime Minister Churchill's statement today to the House of Commons today follows:

Before I come to the subject of the address in reply to the King's Speech I have a few words of announcement which I think I ought to make to the House. General debate on the address will be continued. I think I should refer to certain bills which are to be presented although we did not consider it appropriate to bring those bills into the general scope of the Royal Speech.

A town planning bill, for example, an education in Scotland bill, a restoration of prewar trade practices bill.

The town planning bill contains some of the first results of preparatory work of physical reconstruction which has been going forward under the supervision of Lord Reith.

In connection with provision of time for debates, I think it should be possible to arrange for a reasonably early debate on the question of defence regulation 15B. That is a matter in which a good many members are concerned.

3 Audiences Always in Mind

It has been aptly remarked that ministers, indeed all other public men, when they make speeches at the present time have always to bear in mind three audiences, one their fellow countrymen, secondly, friends abroad, and thirdly, the enemy. This naturally makes the task of public speaking very difficult, yet with our parliamentary and democratic system of government ministers are frequently called upon to make speeches in both Houses of Parliament and in the country, at war savings meetings and the like.

The House has shown me great indulgence in this matter. I feel I shall be excused today from entering at all on a discussion of the war to which I referred in a speech only a month ago. Most of all shall I refrain from making any predictions about the future. It is a month ago that I remarked upon the prolonged silence of Herr Hitler. This apparently provoked him into making a speech in which he told the German people Moscow would fall in a few days. That shows, as everyone will I am sure agree, how much wiser he would have been to go on keeping his mouth shut.

All Shades Of Views Exist

Even I, in my modest way, run great risks of giving dissatisfaction when I speak. Some people are very hard to please. It is impossible to please everybody. Whatever you say, faults can be found. For instance, if I were to pay, as I would like to pay, a strong tribute to the splendid heroism and undaunted gallantry of our Russian allies, I can immediately be answered: "Let us have deeds, not words."

If I were to omit all words of reference to Russian bravery it would, on the other hand, be said that not one kindly word was spoken of those heroes.

If I were to describe the help in detail which we are giving Russia it would be very interesting, but it would be giving away to the enemy secrets which are Russian as well as British. Again, if I gave an appreciation of the fighting on the Russian front I should get hit either way.

If my account was favorable, I should be accused of fostering complacency; if on the other hand it was grave, I would undoubtedly be said to be spreading needless despondency and alarm. Russia would not thank me for understating or disparaging their giant strength.

I mention these facts as illustration of the difficulties and danger of making too many speeches about the war at a time like this, and to give a respectful explanation to the House why with one fleeting exception I am not going to refer to the ever-changing phases of this tremendous struggle.

I am able to give some information about the war at sea. The House will remember that very good reasons were given then for leaving off publishing monthly figures of sinkings by enemy action, and how these precise periodical statements made at too frequent intervals gave the enemy valuable information as to how his varying tactics were succeeding, but there is no objection to giving exact figures over a longer period.

Less Than 750,000 Tons In 4 Month's Fight

I take this occasion to give figures for the last four months ending with October, and comparing them with figures published for the four preceding months ending with June. In the four months ending with June we lost over 2,000,000 tons, or an average of 500,000 tons a month. In the last four months ending with October we lost less than three-quarters of a million tons, or an average of 180,000 tons a month.

A hundred and eighty thousand tons contrasts very favorably with 500,000 tons.

I see Mr. Lloyd George there. We shared in a very humble position, but with full knowledge terrible anxieties of 1917. We saw the figures mount, but we also saw a sudden fall. However, we must not count at all that the danger is past.

But the facts are more favorable than represented in the decline in the four monthly period of from 500,000 to 180,000, because from the point of view of keeping alive your lines of communication and waging war you have to take into account not only of what is lost, but of new building.

Great Speed-up In Building

I do not intend to give exact figures about new building, but making allowances for the new building, net loss to our mercantile marine, apart from captures from the enemy or United States assistance, the net loss has been reduced in the last four months to a good deal less than one-fifth of what it was in the previous four months. This has been done in spite of the fact that there never have been more U-boats or long-range aircraft than are working now.

While that fact should lead us to increase our successful exertions and should in no way favor an easy habit of mind, it does give solid and sober assurance that we shall be able to maintain our seaborne traffic until the great American shipbuilding promised for 1942 comes into service. The United States is building merchant ships on a scale many times what we could do in this island.

Our new shipbuilding efforts are confined to a certain proportion of our resources, but the United States has been embarking on an output of ships incomparably greater than we can produce and surpassing their enormous, successful efforts of last year.

If we are able to get through this year we shall certainly find ourselves in a good supply of ships in 1942 and if the war against U-boats and enemy aircraft continues to prosper as it has done—about which, of course, there can be no guarantee—it seems to me the freedom-loving powers will be possessed of large quantities of ships in 1943 which will enable overseas operations to take place utterly beyond British resources at present time.

Enemy's Losses Steadily Mounting

Meanwhile destruction of enemy shipping is proceeding with even greater violence than before. During the four months ending October, there were sunk or seriously damaged nearly 1,000,000 tons. In the Mediterranean enemy losses have been particularly severe and there is evidence that he is finding it very difficult to reinforce or even supply his armies on the African shores.

This last (Axis) convoy was a particularly valuable one and its total destruction together with the devastation being wrought by our submarines in the Mediterranean is certainly very much to be rejoiced over.

There are at least 40,000 women, children and non-combatants in Abyssinia (Ethiopia). Some time ago, guided by humanitarian instincts, we offered to let the Italian government take these people home if they would send them under the necessary safeguards to ports of the Red Sea. The Italian government accepted this proposal and an agreement was reached, on all details.

But they never have been able so far to send the ships necessary because destruction of their shipping is proceeding at such a high rate and to such a serious extent.

Enemy Disappointed In Suez Attempt

All this makes me hopeful (but I would not prophesy) that the German and Italian losses that they will take the Suez by the end of May last, is likely to remain unfulfilled by Christmas.

But that is much more than we had the right to expect when the Italians made war upon us and the French deserted us in the Mediterranean 18 months ago.

The fact that our shipping losses have so remarkably diminished—and diminished at the very time when Hitler boasted his sea war would be at its height—must be taken in conjunction with our greatly increased production of food at home.

I have always held the view that the British people, especially heavy workers, must be properly fed and nourished in order to get full results from workers.

At the beginning of the year, when it looked as if we should have to choose to some extent between food and munitions material, I asked the cabinet to approve a minimum food importation which should be maintained, if necessary, even at the expense of munitions material.

There is no doubt that the diet of our people has been severely curtailed and has become far less varied and interesting, but still at the rate we are now going, it is sufficient for our physical health although I am hoping we shall be able to give a somewhat larger share of available supplies of meat to workers who need it most.

This can be done by extension of the canteen which will supply meals to workers at places where those workers are gathered. I am glad to see the figure we prescribe for minimum food imports will now probably be achieved and even slightly surpassed.

The Minister of Food has been able to make certain minor relaxations during the winter months in the severity of his restrictions. As a precaution we have amassed stocks of bulk articles of our diet which amount, to double what we had in September, 1939.

Crop Acreage Up Almost Half

In a short space of two years, the area under crops (in England and Scotland) has been increased by no less than 45 per cent.

Despite all difficulties we must go on to produce still more, not only because of the ever-present menace to our importations from abroad, but because it is possible as the war develops that our military operations may make much more extensive demands on our shipping than it now is possible to meet.

Some time ago we were anxious about our coal position, and it still gives us cause for concern. I am glad to say, however, our stocks of coal are now between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 tons larger than they were a year ago, and they are far better distributed.

There are good grounds for believing we shall come through the winter all right without having to derange the army by having to withdraw miners from their platoons.

There is nothing Hitler would dislike more than my recital of these unassailable but prosaic facts.

There is nothing his regime dreads more than that we should be capable of fighting a prolonged war and the proof of failure of their efforts to starve us into submission.

Hitler Sees Failure Of Starvation Plan

In various remarks Deputy Fuehrer Hess has let fall from time to time during his sojourn in our midst, nothing has been more clear than that Hitler relied upon a starvation attack even more than upon invasion to bring us to our knees.

His hopes were centred upon our starvation as his boasts have made the world aware.

So far as 1941 is concerned those hopes at least have been dashed to the ground, but this only increases his need to come at us by direct invasion as soon as he can screw up his courage and make arrangements to take the plunge.

We must have everything working forward for the improved weather of spring, so we are well prepared to meet any scale of attack that can be directed upon us.

Although we are infinitely stronger than we were six months or a year ago, yet at the same time the enemy has had ample time for preparation. I am sure if this attack is attempted upon us by the Germans it will be upon a plan that has been thought out in every detail with their customary ruthlessness and thoroughness.

Swayback Hogs
The Chinese consider the belly the most valuable part of a hog, so they purposely breed swayback hogs with correspondingly large bellies.

Asks for Vote Of Confidence

Our universal resolve to keep the parliamentary institutions in full activity amid the stress of war has been proved.

It is a feat of enormous difficulty never accomplished in any such completeness of perfection in history.

This debate on the address furnishes the signal outstanding parliamentary opportunity of the year. It is the grand inquest of the nation. The fact of passing address in reply without any amendment is proof to the nation and to the whole world that the King's ministers enjoy the confidence of Parliament.

This is essential to any government in times of war because any sign of division or any suspicion of weakness is disheartening to our friends and encourages our foes.

We shall therefore give the address either upon general debate or upon amendments.

I should like to point out for the benefit of those outside the House and in countries abroad who do not realize the potency of our parliamentary institutions that any amendment, however seductive, however misleading, tendentious or artful, sober or wise, which the wit or other qualities of man can devise, can be put upon the paper and be thoroughly debated, and if a division takes place, then everyone can see exactly where the government stands and how far we can count upon the loyalty of the House.

Opposition Free, Not Menaced

I say this for the guidance of those in countries abroad: That no one voting against the government will be assaulted with rubber truncheons or sent to a concentration camp or otherwise molested. In their private lives the worst that could happen to them would be that they might have to make some rather laborious explanations to their constituents.

Let it not be said then that parliamentary institutions are being maintained in this country in a farcical or unruly manner. We are fighting for parliamentary institutions and we are endeavoring to carry their full practice of freedom through even under the stress of war.

In order, however, that there may be no misunderstandings about the basis on which this debate will take place, I must state the government stands united as a corporate body and as men who have bound themselves to work together in special faith and loyalty, and there can be no question of any individual ministers being singled out by intrigue or ill will, or, because of the exceptional difficulty of their task, being hounded in any government over which I have the honor to preside.

From time to time the force of events makes changes necessary, but none is contemplated at the present moment. Neither do I consider it necessary to remodel the system of cabinet government under which we are now, nor of altering in any fundamental manner the system on which the conduct of war proceeds or the production of munitions is regulated and maintained.

The process of self-government is, of course, continuous and every man and woman through the land, in office or out of office, in parliament, or in the cities or municipalities of our country, everyone great or small shall try himself by his conscience every day to make sure that he is giving his utmost effort to the common cause.

No Early Change In Cabinet

We have reached in the 26th month of this war and in some ways have surpassed the deployment of national effort at home which was not reached after all the slaughter until the 48th month of the last war.

We cannot rest content with that, and if parliament, by patriotic and constructive counsel and without unduly harassing those who bear the load, can stimulate and accelerate our further advance, the House of Commons will be playing its part, unyielding, persevering, indomitable, in the overthrow of another continental tyranny, as in the olden time.

FINNS TELL U.S. THEY FIGHT ON

HELSINKI (AP)—Finland today rejected a United States warning to withdraw from the war against Russia on pain of losing American friendship and insisted she was still fighting a defensive war against the Soviet.

The decision was made public in a note issued after a long session of the government. It was Finland's answer to the warning disclosed November 3 in Washington by State Secretary Hull.

Only a short time after publication of the note, air raid sirens sounded in the Finnish capital and residents were sent hurrying to underground shelters, where they remained for a half hour.

Finland, the government advised the United States, does not want to continue the fight against Russia any longer than her vital security demands, but she cannot expose herself to future peril by artificially interrupting military operations before the objective is wholly realized.

The note said the defensive nature of the struggle was not altered by the Finnish army's effort to "make harmless" and man the enemy's attack bases beyond the 1939 borders.

It said that if Finland had had sufficient strength during the 1939-40 winter war she would have done the same and "surely nobody would have doubted the justice of the Finnish operations."

The government said the United States had assumed that Finland's freedom of action "and even her independence have been imperilled by Germany."

"Finland herself has no reason to assume she is in any such danger," the note added. It explained it was a coincidence that Germany took up arms against Russia, a coincidence which saved Finland from standing alone again in a fight which "would have denoted the doom of Finland and the entire north."

Finland, since going to war against Russia last June 26, has regained substantially all the territory she was forced to concede.

Which "BIG bunch" of beets do you get?

This is a picture of three people's ideas of a "big" bunch of beets.

It's a picture of something else, too. It shows how bunches of beets vary from store to store. You can't run from one store to another comparing bunch sizes—not every day, anyway.

So the question is, which size bunch do you get?

Now Safeway has a suggestion. Bunch sizes vary—but a pound doesn't change. A pound is the same amount of beets in any store. The same amount every day in the week.

Why don't you buy your beets by the pound? Your Safeway now sells beets this FULL-VALUE way—by the pound! You pick out just the size of beets and just the number of beets you need. And you pay only for what you get by weight.

U.S. Favors Canada Price Control Two-thirds Call Wage Rates Fair

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Copyright, 1947. All rights reserved.
Reproduction strictly prohibited.

PRINCETON, N.J.—Canada is scheduled to put into effect next Saturday a price and wage-fixing program of the most far-reaching character. It is a policy which the majority of voters in the United States believe should be adopted in this country.

Economists disagree among themselves as to the wisdom and practicality of economic controls, and Congress hesitates to act on price-fixing for fear of antagonizing special groups. In the last analysis the issue boils down to the question—are the American people willing to accept a price-fixing and wage-fixing program, or do they consider it too revolutionary to stomach? The experience of the N.R.A. plainly indicates that no drastic program of that nature is workable without the support of public opinion.

PEWEE FARMERS SATISFIED

The public is more willing to accept wage and price control than has commonly been supposed. That is the evidence from a series of nationwide polls of public opinion by the Institute, the latest of which was completed this week.

Wage control is acceptable to the public for one chief reason—nearly two-thirds of the wage and salary earners polled throughout the country say they are satisfied with their present rate of earnings.

The farm attitude is somewhat different. A smaller proportion of farmers than of wage earners are satisfied with present earnings. Indicating that opposition to price-fixing is likely to make itself felt to a greater extent in farm areas than in industrial areas.

To determine the attitude of wage and salary earners toward the principle of wage-fixing and price-fixing, the Institute conducted a nationwide sampling of opinion among that group on the following question:

"A new law in Canada keeps prices from going higher than they are now and also keeps wage and salary rates from going higher. Would you approve or disapprove of such a law in the United States?"

The results follow:

Approve	67%
Disapprove	24%
Undecided	9%

This vote represents the attitude of wage-earners. However, the results for the entire nation, with all groups combined, are substantially the same.

In previous weeks the Institute has conducted polls among wage and salary earners on the same general issue, with results nearly identical with those in today's survey. Earlier poll results, on a similar question, follow:

"As one way to prevent prices from going up rapidly, would you be willing to have the government keep your wage (salary) rate where it is now, if the government also keeps the prices of the things which you buy where they are now?"

Yes	66%
No	28%
Undecided	6%

ARE WAGE RATES 'FAIR'?

Of basic importance in the discussion of the issue is the question whether wage rates as they exist today are "fair" rates, or at least, whether wage-earners themselves consider the rates fair.

The Institute's questioning of a cross-section of the wage-earning population reveals the interesting fact that a majority of labor union members polled, as well as wage-earners generally, consider that present wage rates are fair.

*This is an indication that the wave of strikes in the defense industries apparently does not spring from any widespread discontent with present wage levels among the rank and file of labor. Not all labor is satisfied, to be sure, and in many industries there is grumbling over low wages. But the general attitude of the majority is revealed in the survey on the following question:

"Do you consider that you are now being paid a fair wage (salary)?"

LABOR UNION MEMBERS

Consider wage fair	65%
Consider wage unfair	33%
Undecided	2%

ALL WAGE-EARNERS

Consider Wage Fair	64%
Consider wage unfair	33%
Undecided	3%

Similar studies among the farm population indicates a different attitude. When a cross-section of farm voters was asked in September whether they thought the price for their chief cash crop was fair, 52 per cent replied in the affirmative, while 34 per cent said it was not fair, and 14 per cent were undecided.

ARGUMENTS ON BOTH SIDES

Quite apart from the effect of wage or price control on the individual pocket-book, the public has various other reasons for favoring or opposing the program.

The principal objections, as shown in comments which voters themselves expressed to interviewers in the survey, are that such a program is not workable and would be "too dictatorial."

The viewpoint of those opposed can be summarized as follows:

"There is too much dictating now as to what we can and cannot do in this country. This would be another shackle on free enterprise. The government has no business meddling with wages and prices. A control program like this simply would not work. The economic system cannot be run half free and half slave. If we regulate wages and prices we've got to regulate every last detail of industrial life. No man or bureau or government agency is wise enough to undertake such a task."

It is significant that no important group of voters mentioned the objection which many New Deal leaders voice against wage-fixing—that labor is not a commodity. This argument apparently has penetrated public consciousness less than others have.

In the minds of voters who favor price and wage control, four distinct arguments are uppermost. They may be paraphrased as follows:

"First, it will prevent profiteering both by wage-earners who are getting higher and higher wages, and by businessmen. It will help assure a more equal distribution of profits."

"Second, war brings inflation, and this measure would prevent runaway prices and the rising cost of living which brought collapse after the last war. This law might help to avoid another depression."

"Third, there is no advantage in getting higher wages if prices go up too. A salary raise is given and the employer immediately passes the buck to the public in higher prices for his product. That calls for another raise and another increase in prices—and it seems there is no end to it."

"Fourth, wage and price control will keep defence costs down. If the government has to buy materials on a rising market, it will cost us all more in taxes. It is better to break the vicious spiral now."

Price Control Set for Dec. 1

OTTAWA (CP)—On the recommendation of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, the government has decided to postpone the effective date of the maximum prices regulations from November 17 to December 1, Finance Minister Isley announced in the Commons Tuesday night.

The reason for the postponement is to ensure the most effective possible administration and enforcement of the regulations from the moment they come into operation. Mr. Isley said in a statement released in conjunction with his Commons announcement.

"No change in policy is involved."

The minister's statement said the board was anxious to have a competent organization equipped and ready to deal with any kind of problem or difficulty which might arise when the new price policy goes into effect.

Considerable progress had already been made, but some important appointments of necessary commodity administrators had yet to be made and staff organization was not yet complete.

Hector McKinnon, board chairman, reported that "careful consideration is being given to the many questions which have been raised by all sections of the public."

Japan Privy Council Meets

Churchill, Knox Speeches Stir Discussion in Tokyo

TOKYO (AP)—Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo discussed the speeches of Prime Minister Churchill and the United States Navy Secretary, Frank Knox, before a plenary session of the Privy Council at the imperial palace today.

The session was devoted to the Foreign Minister's explanation of the international situation, brought to sharp focus by Mr. Churchill's statement a British declaration of war would follow within the hour of any outbreak of war between Japan and the United States.

Newspaper headlines expressed irritation at Knox's statement Tuesday "that grave questions are about to be decided—that the hour of decision is here" and that further American forbearance toward Japan would be misunderstood.

TALK ABOUT KURUSU

The flight of special envoy Saburo Kurusu to Washington in an attempt to revive the deadlocked negotiations was cited by the Miyako as evidence of Japan's intention to maintain peace.

"Firing a poisonous gun at Kurusu" was its headline over a special story from New York telling of the Secretary's Armistice Day address in Providence, R.I.

"Knox's provocative speech attempts to stir up anti-Japanese opinions," declared the newspaper Asahi.

A government spokesman declined comment on Knox's assertion that Washington had been "long suffering and patient."

Well-informed but unofficial quarters said, however, that Knox's remarks were likely to cause little surprise in Japan because he was generally regarded here as a "strong speaker."

PATIENT LONG TIME

"In the last few years," Secretary Knox said, "the efforts this government has made to maintain amicable relations with the Japanese have been long suffering and patient to a degree almost unmatched in the history of international relations. . . . But there comes a time in the life of every man, and every nation, when principles cannot be sacrificed, and when vital and essential rights can no longer be ignored. . . . We are moved and actuated in the Pacific, no less than in the Atlantic, solely by considerations of self-defence."

Good Tidings

WHEN MR. CHURCHILL SAID THE other day that "we have passed through the darkest and most perilous side of this struggle, and are once more masters of our own destiny," he apparently meant that reassuring statement to be the forerunner of others intended to provide a contrast in hope and outlook with the numerous recitals of gloomy tidings which marked the earlier months of his task as Prime Minister. His warning to Japan on Monday, his indication of the growing strength of the Royal Navy and its ability to play an important part in any events that might disturb the peace of the Pacific, has been followed today by another highly-encouraging account of the war's progress and the improved position in which Britain and the Empire find themselves. Here are three points the Prime Minister included in his address to the House of Commons after the formal opening of the new session by King George:

1. In 1943 we shall have sufficient shipping to undertake overseas operations.
2. Almost 1,000,000 tons of Axis shipping were sent to the bottom or damaged seriously in the four months ending in October.
3. During the same period Britain's shipping losses dropped almost two-thirds.

It would seem to be obvious that Mr. Churchill cited 1943 in respect of shipping and its availability for a specific purpose was intended to provide a little mental exercise for Hitler and his gang. It is a statement that will not be lost on those neutral countries in Europe—Turkey and Spain, for example—which are still trying to maintain an even balance between the warring sides without actual involvement in the conflict. The Prime Minister's reference to the losses of Axis shipping, on the northern Atlantic coastline and in the Mediterranean, bears a direct relationship to the capacity of the Axis powers to continue the war until 1943 in the light of events in Russia, in the light of ever-increasing aid from the United States, actual and potential, and the apparent belief in Mr. Churchill's mind—always barring the unpredictable—that the threat to the Middle and Near East may be considerably lessened by the continued destruction of Axis supplies and shipping in Mussolini's much-touted "Mare Nostrum."

Of especial interest was the Prime Minister's reference to Rudolf Hess, from whom it had been learned that "Hitler originally counted more on starvation of the British than on invasion," because a recent statement from Food Controller Lord Woolton indicated that while rigid rationing would remain the lot of the people of Britain, conditions had improved and were likely to become better as increased supplies reached the beleaguered Isle from Canada and the United States. Our neighbor's substantial modification of the Neutrality Act, of course, immeasurably brightens the prospects in this particular. Mr. Churchill's latest pronouncement, therefore, is warmly encouraging, even though Hitler may try invasion of the British Isles "as soon as he can screw up his courage and make his arrangements to take the plunge."

'Mrs.' Bernstorff

THE AMERICAN-BORN WIDOW OF Count Johann von Bernstorff has just returned to her native land to spend the autumn of her days. One of the first requests she made to reporters who met her as she came ashore, and she made it somewhat imperiously, was that the "Countess" and the "Von" be dropped, because she wished to be known from then on as plain Mrs. Bernstorff. Thus does this return of the native summon up many echoes from the past and recalls what frail things are power and glory and popularity. There was a time when Count Bernstorff, as German Ambassador to the United States, was one of the favorite figures in Washington society. He was good-looking. He was urbane. He was greatly talented.

Then came the first World War. Doubtless the Count had to do many things which were distasteful to him, but the Kaiser was his chief and orders were orders. And there were underlings who were not disturbed by any of the finer scruples. There were, for instance, the egregious Franz von Papen—the same Von Papen who has labored long, using all his arts and wiles, to detach Turkey from her friendly agreement with Great Britain, the same Von Papen who was military attaché at the German Embassy at Washington and undoubtedly had his hand in many cases of sabotage.

But there were other things that came closer to Bernstorff. His popularity in America slipped to the vanishing point and beyond, for he became a most hated man in that country. Nor, when he got back to Berlin, was he any more popular there. His imperial master was angry with him. For Bernstorff had repeatedly warned the German government that unrestricted submarine warfare upon American shipping would be certain, sooner or later, to bring the United States into the conflict. He added for good measure that once America came in, Germany's cause was lost. Prophets of that kind are never public heroes. Bernstorff became a diplomat without a job.

When the German Republic was established, and a sorely-tried people put their faith in the Weimar Constitution, Count Bernstorff became one of the leaders of the Democratic party and one of the active advocates of Germany's entering the League of Nations; but he was an unhappy man. He had aged beyond his years. Upon his careworn face were marked his anxieties about the tendencies he saw gaining ground in Germany. The aristocrat in him revolted when he saw the Nazi poison slowly but surely rising to the top. He got out of the Fatherland in good time by going to Switzerland in 1932. Hitler came into power in 1933. Death came to Bernstorff as a welcome caller. The Germany he knew and served seemed gone forever. All his dreams had crumbled into ashes. And his widow has come home to try to forget it all.

Bell Tolling for Japan

WHEN IT MET FOR A PLenary Session at the Imperial Palace today the Japanese Privy Council listened to what is described as an "explanation" of the international situation from Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo. Naturally agitated by Mr. Churchill's announcement on Monday—that if the United States and Japan became involved in war, Britain would join the fray "within the hour"—the men in control at Tokyo were further disturbed yesterday when United States Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox voiced his displeasure at the indeterminate progress of events by declaring that "grave questions are about to be decided," that "the hour of decision is here," and that further American forbearance toward Japan would be misunderstood.

Preceding these specific statements from the British Prime Minister and one of Mr. Roosevelt's trusted advisers was the assurance by the United States government to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek that the administration at Washington would, under no conditions, modify its definite undertaking to aid China in her valiant fight against the Japanese aggressor. Reaffirmation of American policy in this regard obviously was intended to dispose of any qualms the authorities at Chungking might have experienced as they contemplated the flight from Japan to the United States of Mr. Saburo Kurosu with a special message from his government to the President. They remember that it was this servant of Nippon who signed the Axis military pact in Berlin on September 27, 1940, on behalf of the Son of Heaven. The repeated reminders that Mr. Kurosu is not particularly enamored with the totalitarian program, or Japan's acceptance of its underlying intent, does not deceive the realists who surround and support General Chiang Kai-shek. Hence, the points emphasized by Mr. Churchill and Colonel Knox may well have disposed of any apprehension felt in Chungking.

What remains a puzzle to normal folk, of course, is why Premier Admiral Tojo should have dispatched special envoy Kurosu on his mission to Washington in the light of pronouncements from both London and the United States capital, which preceded the unequivocal and by no means surprising declaration of the British Prime Minister at the Lord Mayor's banquet and the revelation of Colonel Knox's visible impatience reflected in his remarks yesterday—if Nippon still intends to establish her "co-prosperity sphere" at all costs. It cannot be to gain time; time is one of war's important commodities of which Japan is running dangerously short. Every day that passes without further warlike action benefits the A.B.C.D. combination.

If, on the other hand, this last-minute diplomatic manoeuvring is intended to placate the Axis chief in Berlin, to prove to him that the triple alliance still is a potent force in the Orient, neither Hitler nor his satellite in Rome will derive much satisfaction from it. Nor will either the Japanese people or the outside world be especially impressed by the continuance of the militant press campaign which Tokyo and other Nipponese newspapers are conducting against Britain and the United States. In the meantime, to use a familiar colloquialism, the government of Premier Tojo remains clearly "on the spot."

LIVING COSTS IN TWO WARS

From Toronto Star

Pattern of Canadian living costs during the present war bears a remarkable resemblance to that of the Great War. In terms of the war now raging, 1941 corresponds to 1916 in terms of the previous one. A cost-of-living index has been compiled based in each case on the costs which prevailed in the month before war began:

	1916	1941
(Increase over July, 1914)	(Increase over August, 1939)
March	8.0%	7.3%
June	10.0%	9.6%
July	11.1%	11.0%
August	12.1%	12.8%
September	15.2%	13.8%
October	16.1%	14.6%

Because heavy taxation usually finds its way into living costs, it is to the credit of Canadian price control machinery that 1941 increases have been lower, rather than higher, than those of 1916. But they exhibit the dangerous trend which, unchecked during the Great War, reached a climax in the postwar period, when, in the middle of 1920, the prewar living costs were doubled. It was because of this trend that the government determined to put a ceiling on prices and services at present. It is one of the most difficult and complex experiments any administration could undertake. But if inflation is checked it will be worth all the time and trouble and expense connected with it.

Bruce Hutchison PARTIES

SOME SINCERE PEOPLE are determined to unite all the political parties of British Columbia in a nonparty government. We are to have a legislature without parties, politics without politicians and government without blemish by archangels who were formerly just ordinary citizens. This is a fine ideal, but it will hardly work. Behind it is something else entirely—a basic distrust of the party system, which means in turn a basic distrust of the parliamentary system, because our parliamentary system could not survive without parties.

The party is the great British invention which enabled parliament to function instead of becoming a quarrelling society of abstract debate. To maintain stability and to put over any policy you must have parties. But parties, being made of men, wear out, and then you must rebuild them or discard them and start new ones. But if you accept the principle of parliamentary government—which is compromise achieved by ceaseless struggle between government and opposition—you must accept parties. Once they disappear, once the opposition disappears, parliament dies. The first thing a dictator must do is to abolish the opposition and after that it is easy.

FIFTY-FIFTY

THE MEMBERS of various political parties, I observe, are all for increased old-age and other pensions. But all agree the whole problem is up to Ottawa. Now, of course, it is not necessarily up to Ottawa. Any province can pay what pensions it pleases. At one time the province paid half the old-age pension. Then the Dominion stepped in and paid three-quarters. But the province did not hand on the increase to the pensioners. They pocketed it and doomed the pensioners to live in their present state of starvation, and these pensioners represent about half the people of Canada over 70. A pleasant prospect to look forward to, dear reader; a fifty-fifty chance of living on $20 a month when you are old.

The point here, however, is that all our politicians and much of the public are under a delusion. They imagine that if we can hand on the cost of increased pensions or any other costs to the Dominion, we can escape them. You would think the Dominion was inhabited by another race. Who is the Dominion? We are the Dominion. We pay all the Dominion's expenses. There is no escape. Indeed, as we are the richest part of Canada we pay rather more than the average share of any cost handed over to the Dominion. That is our business, but the business of the provincial politician is something else entirely. He is concerned only with the province and holding his seat. He doesn't have to worry about the Dominion, which is "we" in another suit of clothes.

"SPENCER-CHURCHILL" AT COURT

One would expect to find the "Court Circular" in London, pretty firm on punctilio in personal address, and it certainly adopts a style of its own in always referring to the Prime Minister as the "Right Honorable Winston Spencer-Churchill." "Spencer-Churchill," with the hyphen as there, is, of course, the family name of the Dukes of Marlborough, but the Manchester Guardian points out the Prime Minister's father was never known as Lord Randolph Spencer-Churchill, nor has the son favored the hyphenated form. For ordinary uses he has dropped, as a matter of fact, two names; according to "Who's Who" his full style is "Winston (Leonard Spencer) Churchill." If the brackets were omitted the personage so described would look almost a complete stranger to most readers of today. But if the "Court Circular" insists on the "Spencer," why is it so remiss about the "Leonard"? A good many famous men have, like Mr. Churchill in dropping his "Leonard," trimmed their names to suit their own taste—as, for instance, Thomas Henry Hall-Caine, Enoch Arnold Bennett and Joseph Rudyard Kipling.

ARMY STORY

John Foster of the British Library of Information in New York tells this story—of when he was assigned to defend an officer in his regiment, who was being court-martialed for having been drunk on duty... Foster made a hurried check-up with the officer's orderly, who truthfully vowed that the defendant was not staggering when he arrived at camp; no liquor breath could be detected, and his order: "Wake me up at 4.30," had been delivered without any tongue-rolling... Foster entered the courtroom, placed the orderly on the stand, and had him repeat that story, which withstood a withering cross-examination... "By the way," the prosecutor finally asked, "did he tell you why he wanted to be awakened at 4.30?" "Yes, sir," was the truthful reply. "He said: 'Call me at 4.30—for I'm to be Queen of the May.'"

Science is using the tough ends of asparagus stalks for defence products. This should be encouraged—some day they may find some defence for us against spinach.

Wouldn't it help national economy and speed up armament progress if sword swallowers could be persuaded to go on a diet of used razor blades?

Parallel Thoughts

Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need.—Hebrews 4:16.

God, the Great Giver, can open the whole universe to our gaze in the narrow space of a single lane.—Robertson Tager.

PARALLEL OVER 2,300 YEARS

From New York Times
Traditionally, The Times of London always supports the official policy. On the question of a British invasion of the continent, the paper would seem to have a hankering another way. In any event, a fortnight ago it printed under the heading, "Old and True," a few lines from a well-known democratic leader rallying his countrymen against an oncoming dictator and totalitarian. The speaker was Demosthenes in 351 B.C. and the question was Athenian defence against Philip of Macedon.

Demosthenes was combating apathy, confusion of counsel and lack of initiative. "Shall we not sail against his territory?" he demanded. "Someone asks 'Where shall we find a landing place?' The war itself will discover the weak place in his position."

As a matter of fact, the Demosthenes of the Third Philippi would be really opposed to this clamor for an invasion of Europe while Hitler is busy in Russia. He is dead against improvised arm-chair strategy and against letting the enemy dictate the military policy. Only a minute or two before the lines quoted above Demosthenes is saying:

"Statesmen must guide circumstances, if they are to carry out their policy and not be forced to follow at the heels of chance. But you, Athenians, possessing unsurpassed resources, have never to this day employed them aright, and you carry on war with Philip exactly as a barbarian boxes. The barbarian, when struck, always clutches the place; hit him on the other side and there go his hands. He neither knows nor cares how to parry a blow or watch his adversary."

"So you, if you hear of Philip in the Chersonese, vote an expedition there; if at Thermopylae, you vote one there; if somewhere else, you still keep parrying with him to and fro. You take your marching orders from him; you have never framed any plan of campaign for yourselves, never foreseen any event, until you learn that something has happened or is happening."

Finally, it should be said that as far back as last spring the parallel between democracy's fight today and the Athenian ordeal 2,300 years ago was worked out in great detail by Professor H. Cramer of Mount Holyoke, N.Y., in his article: "Demosthenes Redivivus" in the April number of Foreign Affairs.

He was more concerned with the political and psychological phases of Demosthenes' problem than with the actual military policy, but his comparisons are striking.

STREAMLINING BIBLE INSTRUCTION

From Bridge River News

The study of the Bible by the pupils of the Creston Public and High Schools will be taken in another building paid for by the School Board, and a Catholic priest, a Lutheran minister, a Presbyterian and Anglican minister asked to teach their own brands at this Bible school, which must have a record attendance of 20 and an enrollment of 25. The respective clerics all reside in Creston. Last year they built elegant new buildings for the schoolchildren. The Creston parents are progressive. Modern, too, they seem to be, streamlining religious education!

PLANT ADDITION A SIGN OF TIMES

From Edmonton Journal
The $40,000 extension of the Edmonton plant of Canada Packers Ltd., will probably be followed by many enlargements of such industries in western Canada.

Their capacity is much below that of the eastern plants. But this part of the Dominion has already exceeded the older provinces in hog production. It is being depended upon to increase its output greatly so that the 600,000,000 pound bacon and ham contract entered into with the British government can be filled. Furthermore it is being freely admitted in the east that the change, revolutionary as it is, is likely to be a permanent one and that the west will continue to lead the country as a hog producer. Alberta's future pre-eminence among the provinces in that respect is taken for granted. That being so, a rapid expansion in western packing facilities is inevitable.

JAWBREAKERS

From Brockville Recorder and Times

If any reader should happen to have a bit of monochloromethylchloroformate or diphenylaminechloroformate, or maybe a speck of trimethylenetrinitramine, lying about the house and thinks of exporting it, he will have to look out. Export of these substances is now brought under regulation.

Great Britain consumes approximately 40,000,000 gallons of ice cream annually, in normal times.

Women to Press for Better Housing Conditions

Members of the Local Council of Women will join in the delegation which will wait on the City Council next Monday afternoon at 3.45 to press for improvement in lower rental housing accommodation in the city. This decision was reached following the report made by Mrs. H. S. Hurn for the housing and town planning committee, in which she touched upon some of the conditions found in the survey made of the low-rental field in Victoria.

Mrs. A. E. Hopkins presided at the meeting held at the Y.W.C.A. Monday afternoon. Prior to business the council stood in tribute to the memory of Mrs. E. O. Weston. The president voiced the council's congratulations to Mrs. H. P. Hodges on her recent election to the Legislature, and to Mrs. Clare McAllister on her excellent showing at the polls. Mrs. Hodges was chosen to represent the council at the opening of the Arena.

WOMEN'S STATUS

The meeting, following a suggestion from the National Council, will ask the support of Mr. R. W. Mayhew, M.P., in petitioning the federal government to set up a committee to study the amending of the Naturalization Act in such a way as to make the nationality of a married woman the same as if she were a "femme sole"; i.e., a British woman would remain British unless she desired to take out naturalization papers on her own account in an alien country, and an alien woman would remain an alien unless she took out her own British naturalization papers.

It was pointed out by Mrs. J. L. Gates, convenor of the committee on laws affecting women and children, that under the amended Naturalization Act of 1931 a British woman has not the right to remain British except when her husband's country does not recognize her as a national merely because of marriage, or if her husband changes his nationality during marriage, or if he becomes an enemy alien. Yet the present legislation allows an alien woman to become a British subject merely by going through the marriage ceremony with a British subject.

NATIONAL COUNCIL

Mrs. Paul Smith, Vancouver, gave an interesting resume of the National Council's annual meeting held in Winnipeg. Among matters considered were the proposal for tax exemption for homes caring for British war guests; town planning and housing problems and the pre-fabricated house as a remedy; the need to consider the whole question of the distribution of food in relation to cost of living; contraction of the hours and opportunities for the purchase of liquor; penal reform.

Emphasis was also laid at the convention upon the need for retention of the framework of the Dominion-provincial training scheme, which is being discontinued in some provinces. Mrs. Smith touched upon the valuable role such a scheme has played in British Columbia's war effort and suggested that it should be linked up with the school system as a post-war measure.

WAR SAVINGS

Mrs. Blair Reid, the treasurer, after her financial statement, reported for the war savings committee of the council, to the effect that the sale of war savings stamps by members in the Hudson's Bay and Spencer's stores from February 15 to October 12 had totaled $3,236.

On the suggestion of the provincial council executive the semi-annual meeting scheduled for November 27 in Victoria will be waived in favor of an executive meeting on the mainland, to which Mrs. A. E. Hopkins was appointed a delegate.

Mrs. A. P. Rayment reported the cessation of jam-making for the season. A letter was received from the Y.W.C.A. thanking the council for a donation of rhubarb jam for the R.A.F. and other service men at the Hostess House. Owing to regulations promulgated after the jam had been made, it was not possible to ship rhubarb jam to England.

A poppy wreath made by Miss Crease was placed on the Cenotaph by Mrs. Hopkins on behalf of the council on Remembrance Day.

Royal Oak W.I. will meet Thursday at 2.15 in the Institute Hall. Mrs. V. S. McLachlan will show her rugs. Visitors will be welcomed. Members are reminded to bring jam for the Solarium.

MISS JEAN M. DAWSON, whose marriage to Sergeant Wireless-Air-Gunner William H. Lewis, R.C.A.F., will take place at St. Aidan's United Church, Mt. Tolmie, Friday evening, at 8 o'clock.

Social and Personal

The young officers in training for the army, navy and air force were special guests when His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. W. C. Woodward entertained at the first of a series of war-time parties this afternoon at Government House. The affair took the form of a tea-dance from 5 till 7, and the guests, including the officers and feminine members of the younger social set, numbered 180. His Honor and Mrs. Woodward, with their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Woodward, received their guests in the drawing room, where bronze and gold chrysanthemums and other lovely blooms from the garden were banked against the leaf-green drapes. Flying Officer Hobart Molson, Mr. A. M. D. Fairbairn, and Miss Ruth MacLean were in attendance. Dancing took place in the ballroom to the strains of the band of the Royal Canadian Navy, by kind permission of Commodore W. J. R. Beech. Tea was served in the dining-room, the buffets being graced with lovely arrangements of chrysanthemums, antirrhinums and other fall flowers.

Mrs. Frederick Taylor of Vancouver, formerly of Prince George, has come to Victoria to reside.

Mrs. John Watson of James Island, and her small son, have returned home after visiting in Victoria with Mrs. Watson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Donald, Elford Street.

Sgt. Leonard Stelek, R.C.A.F., accompanied by his wife, is spending his leave from Brandon at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. F. Stelek, 1214 Old Esquimalt Road.

Miss Myra Batchelor left last night for Vancouver to resume her studies at the University of British Columbia after spending the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Len Batchelor, "Highview," Fairfield Road.

Mrs. R. L. Whitlaw of Oak Bay will leave for Seattle Thursday, where she will attend the wedding of her niece, Miss Marlon Baddeley, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Beakes, Queen's Avenue. Miss Doris Acreman, who was to be her cousin's attendant, will not be able to attend owing to illness.

Attractive arrangements of pink and gold streamers and flowers made an effective color scheme at the home of Miss Helen McLellan, 1613 Belmont Avenue, when a delightful party was held by fellow-employees of the bride at Spencer's Ltd. for Miss Edythe Drake and Mr. John Callow, whose marriage will take place November 19 at 8 p.m., at St. John's Church. The guest of honor and her mother, Mrs. F. J. Drake, received corsages of white and pink carnations respectively, the former also being presented with a dainty table lamp by Miss Margaret Jones. Games were enjoyed and later refreshments were served, the table being centred with an amber bowl of pink asters. Other invited guests were the Misses Florence Rowley, Patricia Hawk, Marjorie McDougall, Doris Haller and Kay Ward and Messrs. B. Simpson and George Wallace.

In compliment to Miss Louisa Edmunds, whose marriage to Mr. John Victor Barnes will take place this month, Mrs. J. S. Harper, Mrs. A. Hetherington and Mrs. J. T. Harper entertained on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. J. S. Harper, 488 Admirals Road. On the arrival of the guest of honor and her mother, Mrs. A. Edmunds, each received corsage bouquets of carnations and chrysanthemums, and later Miss Edmunds was presented with a personal gift by the little Misses Dorothea and Janet Harper on behalf of the assembled guests.

Games were played, prizes for the same being awarded to Mrs. E. Waldron, Mrs. D. Baird, Miss Jessie Edmunds and Miss Sarah Harper. Supper was served from a lace-covered table centred with a basket filled with pink and red carnations. Other guests present included Mrs. A. Anderson, Mrs. J. Knowles, Mrs. J. Norman, Mrs. J. ### 9 Anti-freeze Drinkers Die

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP)—Two filling station attendants, who allegedly sold an anti-freeze solution which resulted in the deaths of nine men after an outdoor drinking party, pleaded not guilty to manslaughter charges today and were held in $2,000 bail for hearing November 19.

The men, George Ryan, 25, and Alfred L. Bernier, 25, also pleaded not guilty to illegal sale of the solution.

When the ninth man died, two others lay in serious condition from after-effects of the drinking session.

One survivor, apparently unaffected by the drinks, cheerfully informed police he awakened after the party feeling "top-notch." He said about 15 men had drunk the mixture Monday afternoon in a section known as "the Jugle."

Murder Inc. Head Falls to Death

NEW YORK (AP)—Abe "Kid Twist" Reles, once a snarling leader of Murder Inc. Brooklyn gang accused of more than 80 murders and lately a squealer singing away the lives of his former cronies, fell to his death today in trying to escape from a sixth floor room in the Half Moon Hotel in Coney Island, where he was held under police surveillance.

Assistant District Attorney Edward Heffernan said Reles, 35, fell on a concrete sun deck after leaving his sixth floor window on an improvised rope of wire and bed sheets.

Reles admitted in testifying against his cronies that he himself had killed or aided in the slaying of six men.

Try to Avert Strike

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister McLarty told the House of Commons this afternoon a conference between the gold mine operators at Kirkland Lake and the employees' union has been proposed for next Monday in Ottawa.

Vernon Flier On Lost Plane

R.C.A.F. headquarters, Ottawa, announced Tuesday the names of the five members of the R.C.A.F. twin-engine flying boat, missing since November 4 on a flight from Penticton to Patricia Bay.

They are:
L.A.C. Charles Murray Ross, whose wife is at Vernon.
Sgt. Gerald Searing Palmer, whose mother is at Raymond, Alberta.

Cpl. John Bruce Fernie, whose wife lives at Rimby, Alberta.
L.A.C. Gilbert Fowler Willett, whose wife lives at Hampton Station, N.B.

Sgt. Jack Fenton Bliss, whose father lives at San Diego, Calif.
From Patricia Bay the search for the plane continues. Several clues lead officers to believe the plane went down in the Alberni district.

Rev. F. E. Pitts, former principal of the Indian Residential School at Alberni, said he saw a large plane fly over his farm, about two miles from Port Alberni, November 4. He said he obtained a good view of the machine from a distance of about 300 yards and it appeared to be flying in the direction of Mount Arrowsmith.

Mr. Pitts said it was foggy and beginning to get dark and visibility was poor. He said the plane was flying so low he at first feared it would not clear the trees surrounding his pasture.

After viewing pictures of various types of planes, Mr. Pitts said the machine he saw was a Stranraer flying boat.

Reports from McCoy Lake, 12 miles northeast of Alberni, and from Franklin River, west of here, say a plane was heard circling in low hanging clouds.

By PETE SALLAWAY

LONG TIME SINCE we have witnessed as much real spirit to win as evidenced at Saturday's soccer match between the United and Vancouver St. Saviour's. It was one of those real knock 'em down and drag 'em out affairs. Members of each club gave and took their knocks, and there were plenty of them. We doubt if there was a player left the field without a piece of skin missing or a bruise to remind him he had been in a soccer match.

Then, at the end of the match, the St. Saviour's trainer got into a fight with one of the spectators. Apparently the fan started to rib the visiting official so he dropped his grip, water bottle and bucket and started a scuffle. The pair rolled around in the dirt under the grandstand until some of the more cool-headed people pulled them apart. They were all for going at it again but were kept apart until the spectator left the park.

Reminded us of the old days when Vancouver-Victoria soccer rivalry really was keen. Funny enough, feelings always seem to run high when St. Saviour's make an appearance here. Their players always want to argue with the referee and, as a result, both the players and fans become worked up. We even heard a number of Vancouver fans trying to lay bets on the outcome. That is something we haven't seen around for a long time.

When the famous Harlem Globe Trotters play basketball in Victoria this winter the fans are liable to see a seven-foot centre in action with the Negro club. We have received word that Manager Abe Saperstein is grooming George Atkins, giant California youngster, for the position. Saperstein has always gone in for the unusual with his touring squad and, if Atkins makes the grade, he will be a popular addition, as

Services Rugby Colorful

Navy Defeats Army

It was three cheers and goodly portion of silverware for the Navy yesterday, following their 17 to 8 win over the Army in the annual Remembrance Day rugby battle. Sub-Lieut. Danny Cogle, blond, curly-haired captain of the navy side, received the Remembrance Day Trophy from Major Gen. R. O. Alexander, G.O.C. Pacific Command, at the conclusion of one of the most colorful sports events staged at Macdonald Park. Flags adorned the grandstand. The Army and Navy bands played their respective teams on to the field. Major Gen. Alexander shook hands with each player, then made the first kick-off. Even the goal posts bore the colors of the two services.

Despite the flags and ceremony, a crowd that filled the grandstand and overflowed onto the edges of the field, enjoyed the game more than the details. And it was a good fight, much better than the score and rabid cheers of Navy supporters indicated.

Both teams were evenly matched in the backfield, but the senior service scrum was heavier and more experienced, getting the ball back to their three-quarter line far more than the Army. All of which explains the score, because Sgt. Doug Bray's boys were in there fighting all the way, and when they had the ball they certainly kept their opponents worried.

EARLY LEAD

Navy started off with a full head of steam, gaining a 11 to 0 lead in the first 15 minutes. Jack Grogan, who scored eight of his team's points, made it 3 to 0 at seven minutes, booting a penalty kick from 35 yards out. One minute later, after a beautiful three-quarter run, P. T. Instruktor Chuck Sweet of the Navy finished the dash with the ball over the line. Grogan's kick missed and score was 6 to 0.

The game then subsided into a kicking duel, Grogan and Army's Ted Colgate showing nice booting ability. At 15 minutes, Sub-Lieut. Bill Colby, speedy wing three-quarter, ended a three-quarter run with a solo 20-yard dash across the line, Grogan adding the extra points.

Five minutes later Army swept up to within 20 yards of the Navy line on a fast three-quarter run, then dribbled the ball over, Gunner Harry Coul outspeeding the sailor backs to drop on the leather. Colgate made the convert, and the half ended with score 11 to 5.

Army pressed hard at the start of the second half, Rusty Goepel starting some snappy runs. With five minutes gone, Colgate, who played a great safety game for the Army, drop kicked the ball yards out the Navy posts from 30 yards out to make the score-board read 11 to 8.

Navy was awarded a free kick at the 10-minute mark. Grogan easily converting. This seemed to take the heart out of the red-shirted boys, and although they pressed dangerously on a couple of occasions, Navy held most of the play. Danny Cogle made the last score four minutes from time ending a three-quarter run with a fast dash. Grogan's kick failed.

BROOKLYN, N.Y. — Danny Bartfield, 136½, New York, out-pointed Carmelo Fenoy, 138, Barcelona, Spain (8).

Holiday Sport Action

Although they look more like a group of adagio dancers those are soccer players in the above picture. The cameraman caught some fast action around the St. Andrews goal, Tuesday, during the Coast League match which saw Victoria United score a 1 to 0 victory. The two players doing the balancing act are Bobby Newbold, visiting goalie, and Harrison, Victoria centre-forward. The lad heading the ball is Hislop, St. Andrews' halfback, while Noel Morgan, Victoria inside-left, has just returned to the ground after attempting a header.

Mad scramble above was seen during a throw-in from the sideline in Tuesday's annual Remembrance Day rugby clash between the Army and Navy. The Navy players are in the checkered uniforms and they lived up to all the advance dope about their smart club by scoring a 17 to-8 victory. With two bands in attendance the match presented all its usual color.

Coast Hockey

Clippers-Spitfires Tie

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—By virtue of two last-period goals, New Westminster Spitfires held Nanaimo Clippers to a 4 to 4 overtime tie in the Royal City opening of the new Pacific Coast Amateur Hockey League here Tuesday night.

In the league opener in Vancouver Monday night the Clippers absorbed a 5 to 3 beating at the hands of Vancouver Norvans. They will return to their home city where they entertain Spitfires Saturday night. Victoria's scheduled opening game against Clippers Friday night has been postponed and the opening will take place the following Friday when Victoria Bapcos clash with Norvans.

Merrick Cranston opened the scoring for New Westminster on a pass from Art Forrest after seven minutes of the first period. Six minutes later Clippers had overtaken and passed the Spitfires and held a one-goal lead of 2 to 1 at the end of the session on goals by Jimmy Neilson and Jackie Mann.

Early in the second period Ed Trites evened the score at 2 to 2 when he scored on Forrest's rebound.

REGAIN LEAD

Jim Miles gave Nanaimo another one-goal lead midway through the period when he scored on a pass from Mann, and shortly after Neilson sent Clippers two up on a pass from coach Bill Phillips.

The lead was short-lived, however, as New Westminster came back 15 seconds later and evened the score on two goals in less than a minute by Cranston and Forrest, forcing the overtime during which neither team scored.

Three Fights for Conn in January

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Billy Conn will start his campaign for a return shot at Joe Louis' heavyweight championship with three tune-up fights in January. Billy's manager, Johnny Ray, said Tuesday night these tussles would be against Frank Hamer, January 12, in Toledo, Ohio; Babe Ritchie January 19 in Washington and Texan Jay D. Turner January 26 in Baltimore.

"None is an outstanding opponent," Johnny admitted, "but we scheduled these bouts first to get Billy turned up for a winning crack at Louis next spring, and secondly so that fans in those cities can get a look at him."

JERSEY CITY, N.J. — Frankie Duane, 135, Elizabeth, N.J., stopped Mickey Lerona, 133, New York (7).

Blue Bombers Defeat Regina

WINNIPEG (CP)—Winnipeg's injury-riddled Blue Bombers, with backs to the wall defending the Western Interprovincial Football Union championship they have held the past four years, edged out the young, determined Regina Roughriders 18 to 12 here Tuesday to square the two-of-three union final at one game each.

Wayne Sheley, who came to Bombers three years ago from Augustana College, South Dakota, and has been used chiefly in a relief role, was rushed into the breach opened by injuries to the great ball-carriers, Art Stevenson and Fritz Hanson. The 190-pound halfback turned in 60 minutes of gallant effort, scored two touchdowns and fired a forward pass for the third.

Roughriders took the first game 8 to 6 at Regina last Saturday in a game which cost Bombers services of Stevenson, former Nebraska star who injured his knee and is benched for the rest of the series. The western title and a berth in the national final hinge on outcome of the third game here Saturday. For the crowd of scarcely more than 2,000 who braved freezing temperatures, Sheley provided the highlights. His forward passing was sensational as Bombers completed eight in 14 tries. His plunges against the stout Regina line had consistency

Victoria United Scores Third Straight Victory

Morgan's Goal From Penalty Whips Saints

Noel Morgan's goal from a penalty kick, midway through the second half, gave Victoria United a 1 to 0 victory over Vancouver St. Andrew's in the coast league soccer match here Tuesday before a large holiday crowd.

It marked the third successive home victory for the United and consolidated their hold on second place in the league standings, behind North Shore. United will travel to Vancouver Friday night for its opening match on the mainland Saturday afternoon.

Victoria whipped the Saints despite the fact the team took the field minus three of its key players. Gordie Bell, outside right, was nursing an injured leg, suffered in Saturday's fixture with St. Saviours; Glenn Robbins, stalwart centre half, was busy on his firefighting job in Saanich, while centreforward Ralph Cosier was playing with the Army team in a services match.

ART CHAPMAN BRILLIANT

Manager Doc Poynts of the United pulled a smart one when he grabbed Art Chapman as a replacement for Robbins at centre half. The big fellow was the outstanding player on the field and it was his great defensive play, along with fullbacks Roy Barnes and George Leggett and wing halves Jack Moon and Harold Sage that saved the day for Victoria. Chapman was all over the field breaking up the offensive attempts of the visitors and most important of all he clung to Mackintosh, crack centre forward of the Saints, like a twin brother and smothered his every attempt to get into scoring position.

Only goal of the match came after 20 minutes of the second half had ticked away. During a Victoria attack, Johnny Newbold, Saints' inside right, handled the ball and Referee McMillan whistled for a penalty. It was a tough call as the ball appeared to play the man. Morgan picked the corner easily.

Saints had plenty of opportunities to score and put in many dangerous drives that forced goalie Joe Travis to prove himself. It was the first time Travis had really been under fire this season and he stood up well. In the first half, especially, Joe was outstanding. He picked off a hard first-timer from Newbold, following a corner kick, and on another occasion leaped up to the high corner to pick off a drive from Mackintosh that had goal written all over it.

Although beaten, the Saints treated the crowd to a beautiful short passing game. The Vancouver club could work the ball right up to the penalty line but there their plays ran afoul of a stubborn Victoria defence that just wouldn't be beat. In McGeachy and Jones the Saints showed the finest pair of fullbacks to appear here in a long time. Both big fellows, their kicking and clearing was pretty to watch. Hislop at right half was another visitor who showed well.

ANNUAL MEETING

Annual meeting of the Uplands Golf Club will be held in the clubhouse on November 13 at 8. All members are requested to make a special effort to attend.

of a battering ram and he out-kicked Regina punters by an average of eight yards. Yet Wayne's four fumbles, all recovered by Regina, might easily have cost his mates the game.

Bowling Club Officers

At the annual meeting of the Lake Hill Lawn Bowling Club, held in the clubhouse on November 7, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Alex McCallum; vice-president, Wm. Gibson; secretary-treasurer, A. L. Urry; executive committee, President, vice-president, secretary, J. Imrie and L. A. Campbell; green captain, A. F. Mitchell; games committee, G. Upward, R. McDowell and W. Bond; delegates to Greater Victoria Association, A. McCallum, H. Milnes and A. L. Urry.

Injuries Strike Toronto Leafs

TORONTO (CP)—The injury list will force Toronto Maple Leafs to revise their line-up for Thursday Night's National Hockey League game here against Montreal Canadiens.

Coach Happy Day had little Johnny McCreey patrolling Sweeney Schriner's left wing beat in practice Tuesday. Schriner, who suffered a fractured toe in the opening game of the season, is expected to see some action against Montreal, but won't go over the boards with every change of lines.

Nick Metz, who suffered a twisted knee in a game against Boston here last Saturday, is taking a heat treatment in hospital and is a doubtful starter Thursday. Boy Davidson is set to replace him at left wing on a line with Gordie Drillon and Syl Apps.

DETROIT CHANGES

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League Tuesday night recalled winger Bill Jennings from Indianapolis of the American League in exchange for Joe Fisher, but there was some question whether the latter would accept the transfer.

Manager Jack Adams of the Red Wings said Fisher balked at the deal and threatened to return to his home at Medicine Hat, Alta., and quit hockey.

Army Football Team Wins Game

Displaying a splendid brand of soccer, the Army took top honors in yesterday's game at Bullock Park with a 5 to 1 victory over the Navy.

It was the Cockerill of the Navy that scored the opening goal, smashing through a heavy Army defence 25 minutes after the kick-off. Three minutes after, Terry Carlow, hero of the soldiers, sizzled the ball from out of a fray, and with effective blocking and footwork succeeded in tying the score.

Carlow again brought cheers from the large attendance, and victory for the Army boys with his second goal within five minutes of the end of the first half. From the opening minute of the second half, it was the Navy fellows that did the pressing, but it proved fruitless in face of the wall of resistance built by the Army. Ritchie, Navy goalie, showed a fine display of stopping, and it was he that saved some mighty swift balls. During the middle of the second half, the ball was being handled roughly not more than five feet from the goal, with a mass of manpower struggling in a battle for victory. Ritchie succeeded in getting the ball from out of the fray.

COSSIER GETS TWO

During the last 15 minutes of the second half Cosier scored two more goals for the Army, and five minutes before the final whistle, it was again the Army that scored, this time Mills taking the honors.

Cosier, as captain of the Army team, accepted the Coach and Horseshoe Trophy from L. H. Brookbank at the end of the fray.

CASTILLOUX BEATEN

MONTREAL (CP)—Len Mancini, fiery young scrapper from New York, Tuesday night gained a 10-round decision over Dave Castiloux of Montreal, Canadian welter and lightweight champion, in one of the feature bouts of a fighting card here. Castiloux's titles were not at stake.

Revenue, Ability Determine Wages

The way the Saanich council arrives at wages is by discussion, amount of revenue and efficiency and ability of the employees, Reeve L. Passmore said this morning at the cost-of-living bonus arbitration board sitting at the Courthouse.

The arbitration board was appointed upon the petition of employees of Saanich. G. Howard Harman is chairman, H. W. Davey and E. L. Fox, arbitrators. The hearings began Monday.

Reeve Passmore said the distribution of a large urban population in a large rural area was the source of many of the problems in Saanich.

"Saanich has a small improvement tax rate, because we feel we do not provide the services," he said. "In the very near future our taxpayers are going to be taxed very heavily for the services the city and Oak Bay now have."

REEVE AGAINST BONUS
Because it contributes to a "spiral of inflation," Reeve Passmore said he was not in favor of cost-of-living bonuses.

"Some definitely don't get highest wages," he said when questioned about wage rates for Saanich employees. "But they do get other benefits." He mentioned the congenial working conditions and the absence of the pressure of competition that workmen would have on similar positions in business.

H. H. Allen, municipal engineer, was questioned at length on the wage scales of truck, shovel and grader drivers. Big truck drivers get $100 a month, plus a $5 cost-of-living bonus, he said. The grader drivers get $110 a month, and the shovel driver $5 a day when he works on the shovel, and $4.50 when he works in the yard. Mr. Allen said the Dominion government required the payment of $12.14 an hour for the shovel driver when it was rented on national defence contracts.

"Somewhat inferior" roads, said Mr. Allen, probably make the work of firemen more dangerous in Saanich than in Victoria.

At the Monday afternoon hearings, Wilfred Greene, Saanich municipal clerk, said all employees, with the exception of four, have received since 1939 pay increases, or bonuses, which amount to from 5 per cent up-wards.

R. W. Blandy, Oak Bay municipal clerk, said that by the new provincial superannuation legislation, municipal employees were brought under a scheme whereby they may retire at the age of 65 on a pension of $30 a month, regardless of salary paid, the municipality contributing 7 per cent of the entire payroll, and the employees at least 4 per cent of their salaries.

Roy Munner is counsel for Saanich; E. A. Blethman, yard superintendent, and George Paton, waterworks foreman, for the municipal employees. The hearings will continue.

Asks Police Inquiry

A suggestion from Alderman B. J. Gadsden that "some inquiry be held into law enforcement in this city" was referred to the police commission by the City Council Monday.

The alderman, supporting his call for an investigation, stated ladies had reason to complain over things occurring in city streets and that bicycle riding on sidewalks was continually practiced against the law.

"Cases go on from time to time, month after month," he said, adding "These robberies go on with out being nipped in the bud."

"That is a reflection on the police," the mayor remarked. "You're charging them with incompetence."

Blitz Veteran

Tea Canteen, Iron Duke In Victoria Friday

The "Iron Duke," mobile tea canteen, veteran of the winter aerial blitz of 1940 and 1941, its sides scorched by flames, holed by bomb fragments and riddled with machine gun bullets from Messerschmidts and Stukas, will come to Victoria, Friday, after a triumphant tour of Ontario, Quebec and the prairie provinces.

Victoria representatives of the Queen's Canadian Fund for air raid victims, under whose auspices the "Iron Duke" is making its historic trip across the Dominion, say that the visit to Victoria will be the last stop of its tour. It came here to raise money for the Queen's Canadian Fund and the Lord Mayor's Fund.

The old tea wagon, one of many whose effective work in helping soldiers, firemen and bomb victims has been a large factor in the maintenance of civilian morale in modern warfare, was in active service for six months before it crossed the Atlantic. It traveled 11,000 miles in London and East Anglia and was under Nazi fire 33 times. Its burns were received last December as it kept up a ceaseless flow of hot tea and food to exhausted firemen fighting the City of London blaze set by incendiary bombs.

TELLS STORY OF LONDON

On its battered frame, in its scorched interior and in the relics it carries, is told the heroic story of London, 1941.

It is being brought to the city by a young English matron, Mrs. Lionel Gibbs of London and Winchester, who will act as official hostess. Mrs. Gibbs recently came from England to visit her two sons in school near Boston, Mass. She is a daughter of Sir Harold Snagge, chairman of the Napier Aero Engine Works, and is the widow of a veteran of the last war. She did relief work in a reception

Canada Hesitancy Puzzles Robeson

Paul Robeson, speaking at the luncheon tendered him here Tuesday and attended by 150 persons, appealed for aid for Russia, and said Canada's hesitancy puzzled him.

"I am here because I know how very important aid is for those who are bearing the brunt of the battle for us today," he said. "After my experience of Europe through living in England from 1928 to 1939 and visiting every part of Europe, including Russia, it became perfectly clear to me before the war that if there was one nation that would stand for wiping Hitler off the face of the earth it was Soviet Russia."

"Eighty-five per cent of the people of England wanted an Anglo-Soviet pact. It is not clear how a small group was able to thwart this desire for so long. "Coming across Canada I found many people very hesitant to bring up the question of the Soviet Union and aid to it. This I cannot understand. If there is any people that will stand up and fight it out with Hitler to the bitter end, it is the people of Soviet Russia."

Mr. Robeson talked of his own family background and of race discrimination against negroes on this continent and even in England. Russia was the only country he had found where there was no discrimination against a human being because of his color or race.

"My boy, brought up on 'this continent and in England, was made to feel that he was of a different race," Mr. Robeson went on. "When we got to Russia station for wounded near Southampton. She will be accompanied by her co-worker, Hon. Mrs. Robin Gordon, whose husband is in Egypt with the Coldstream Guards.

Like hundreds of other mobile tea cars in constant service throughout Britain, the "Duke" is equipped with a compact cooking unit which provides tea and hot food for bombed-out civilians, fire-fighters and soldiers. The wagon last saw service in the ravaged areas along the east coast of England, one of the focal points of the long-awaited invasion attempt by the Nazis.

Except for the usual camouflage and steel helmets provided for the occupants, this car provided no protection. It was dubbed the "Iron Duke" by English Tommies because of its charmed existence. The car was often shaken by bombs and bullets but was never knocked out.

Included in the collection of war relics the "Duke" is carrying are: An old bomb, incendiary bomb, nose of a nose used in the great London fire of December, 1940, bomb fragment from Buckingham Palace, parachute from an unexploded Nazi "V-1" mine, number of pieces from German planes shot down over the Old Country and rubble from the House of Commons.

In all the cities it has been to so far demonstrations of how it worked under war conditions were given. Hundreds of Canadians have quaffed tea from the same mugs used by Londoners. Electrical recordings of actual London air raids are carried by the travelling canteen and when the demonstrations were given all the reality of the actual sound and fury of an air raid were conveyed.

The wall of the "banshee" siren, police whistles, drone of the Nazi bombers, crack of the A.A. guns, motors of the British night fighters and the bursting of the enemy bombs were all heard.

I was amazed to find that there was no difference. So until the war interfered he was carrying on his collegiate work in Russia.

"If we want to make it a better world, it must be an anti-Fascist world and we should bring in all the people against Fascism. One cannot talk about making it an Anglo-Saxon world after the war and forget about the Chinese world or the African world or other non-Fascist peoples."

"I hope you in Canada will stand four-square to all forces against Fascism and wipe it from the face of the earth. "Wherever there is a struggle between the strong and the weak, I am for the weak."

Mr. Robeson was introduced by Dr. D. M. Baillie and at the head table with him was Dean Spencer Elliott.

He was taken to Jubilee Hospital for treatment.

Chest Over $60,000

Community Chest collections rode over the $60,000 mark today as workers continued their efforts to reach the $60,500 objective in the extended campaign. Headquarters urged canvassers to complete their visits as early as possible and invited those who had finished their own territory to volunteer for work in areas where workers have yet to go.

Two Commandments Best New Order

Witty, gruff, Commissioner Benjamin Orames, head of the Salvation Army in Canada, spoke to Gyre Club members and their ladies yesterday on "The Army Behind the Army."

"I'm old fashioned enough to believe that the new order which will make this world a better place in which to live, goes back over 2,000 years," he said. "That order is two commandments enunciated by Jesus Christ himself—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God and thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. If we build upon this we shall have the realization of what the angels sang over Bethlehem when the Lord was born—Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men."

The speaker paid tribute to all other organizations, acting as auxiliary services to the men in uniform.

"I don't want anyone to feel that the Salvation Army is the only pebble on the beach," he remarked.

He gave a few figures to show the scope of the work in which the Salvation Army was concerned. He said that 35,000 articles of clothing were sent overseas each month by the army for evacuees and soldiers. In August, 6,476 visits were made by army members to men of the forces in hospitals. Daily, 50,000 men utilized Salvation Army canteens. Each Sunday night, 10,000 men of the services in Canada gather in Salvation Army huts for sacred meetings and singing.

Commissioner Orames added that 2,446,000 men had used mobile army canteens since the start of the war and 23,000,000 pieces of stationery had been issued to the troops in the same period. In two years 300,000 socks and sweaters had been sent to the men overseas.

"We couldn't do this work without the willing hearts and the clever hands of all the women who work for us and without the funds we receive in the war services drives," the speaker said. "A total of 3,000,000 women work in over 500 Red Shield centres across the Dominion."

He ended with the words, "It is not our military system, our uniforms, our hands that make our work effective. It is the unseen spiritual driving force that drives our efforts onward."

Letters to the Editor

DESPITE MR. SANDERS

Admiring Mr. A. B. Sanders as I do, seeing he has the courage of his own convictions, I would like to say however, while atoms are atoms and dust is dust, no man may deny me—my faith and trust. Good day!

ALAN GREIG,
393 Southgate St.

GOLDEN AGE AND
MR. SANDERS

I agree with Mr. Sanders that superstition must go before a golden age can come. The Bible read, believed and acted upon is the best weapon. There is no such thing as "scientific co-operation." If there was, would it have anything better to offer than "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself;" "as thyself" implies a willingness to share even our most cherished possessions, money, homes. "Do good and lend hoping for nothing again," people who love the Book, do that the most willingly, others go in for raffles.

The German professors did their best to discredit the Bible. Hitler discarded it, but even Mr. Sanders cannot believe there is the least sign of a golden age in Germany or any other country where it is a closed book, they are paying the price of their folly instead.

MRS. GIBBS

NUMERICS

Many people have been asking me to explain the method of Bible (30) Numerics (102) — 132 giving a divine (63) message (69)—132 in the Israel (64) language (68)—132.

Simply it is to set A as 1, B as 2, C as 3... Z as 26, to substitute numbers for letters, thus: G-7, O-15, D-4 so that God adds to 26.

When the numbers of words and phrases are the same for Biblical expressions and ideas they have special significance, especially for God's Holy Kingdom of United Israel in the United Kingdom and the United States.

Judgment (94) of (21) nations (92)—207; at (21) the (33) time (47) of (21) the (33) flood (52) —207; the (33) second (60) world (72) war (42)—207.

Ask your preacher what this means. He should be able to tell you for he is a Bible student. However, if he cannot tell you then consult the Bible yourself and seek the help of a British or American Anglo-Saxon Israel student.

C. W. DEANS, M.S.E.
3049 West 27th Ave.

WE, TOO, MIGHT BE CANNIBALS

Mr. Sanders told us that "for 1,500 years the Christian churches had inspired Christian rulers and their subjects to torture, burn, persecute and slaughter, and justified their conduct by Holy Writ," and he offers that as a reason for discarding the Bible. It was man's private interpretation (religious dogma) which deluged the world in blood and tears. It was the devil's best weapon against God's Word and its believers.

It was not secular progress, but an open Bible which curbed the barbarous unchristian practices and the mysticism which bigoted men tried to force on the world in the name of the Lord. Where the Bible has been most freely read and believed by the common people, there we find most freedom and happiness, most hospitals, orphanages and abolished slavery.

Religion may prevent children having a rational education, but the open Bible has helped educate thousands who would never have learnt to read one word without it. Ask the thousands of untouchables in India, the thousands in China, in Africa what the Bible believed and acted upon has meant to them; ask "Mother India" what life was like for her before the missionaries brought hospitals, dispensaries, orphanages, schools, hope and happiness to the child widows. A traveler in Africa was deriding the missionaries to an old native chief who, looking solemnly at the man, said, "Had the missionaries not come and shown us God's way we would have eaten you long ago."

BOYS' DIRECTOR

With over six years of experience in boys' work to his credit, Cameron Gorrie is now the boys' and young men's secretary of the Victoria Y.M.C.A. He replaces V. van Schoemaker, who left the city last August after being with the "Y" for 14 years.

Cameron was graduated from the University of British Columbia in 1935, after specializing in psychology and sociology. Utilizing his knowledge of boys, their pastimes and hobbies, he started in Notre Dame, Quebec, with the Y.M.C.A. there. While in this post he added further to his knowledge of young men and their activities, looking after community work and games. A year later he left.

From there he went to Westmount, Montreal, to take advantage of the summer program being offered there, all the while learning the ways of the boys that he directed.

Peterborough, Ont., Windsor and Detroit were the next stations of work for Mr. Gorrie, and it is from the latter city that he has come to carry on the boys' work at the Y.M.C.A. of this city.

Cameron, born in Vancouver, represented the Vancouver Y.M.C.A. in the Boys' Parliament 10 years in Victoria.

"I think that the Victoria 'Y' is carrying the best program of any I have been to... and I want to express my tribute to V. van Schoemaker who has done such an excellent job here while he was boys' secretary," said Cameron.

Predicting great futures for the So-Ed Club, Cam, as the fellows call him, expressed the hope that this organization will soon fill the needs of more young men and women. He plans to encourage more group work for the boys under his direction, introducing groups where responsibility will be experienced by the boys themselves. This, in the estimation of Mr. Gorrie, is one of the major steps in training the young man for a democratic life.

Esquimalt Schools Mark Armistice

Esquimalt High School and Elementary School held a joint assembly Monday morning in honor of Remembrance Day in the auditorium of the Elementary School.

ELLIOTT NICHOLSON

The principal of the high school after explaining the significance of Remembrance Day read the poem "For Armistice Day," by John Oxenham.

Following the salute to the flag Reeve Lockley read a message to school children from Lieutenant-Governor Woodward, which encouraged all children to do their share toward winning the war.

The schools joined in singing "Land of Hope and Glory." Rosamond Devensh of the high school recited "The Soldier," by Rupert Brooke, after which the schools participated in the singing of "O God Our Help in Ages Past."

A feature of the program was the reading by the principal of the elementary school of a poem written by a pupil of Grade 8, Lamson Street Elementary School, Elliott Nicholson, who spent a year under war conditions in England. The poem, entitled "This England," follows:

"Dear England, bulwark of the free
Our beautiful Isle beset by sea.
O land of peaceful country lane,
Renowned by all for more than name,
Thy men of honor, courage and fame!

Stand fast, O England, stay thy ground!
Fall not through ruthless foes abroad.
Fight the fight with all thy might,
Defending all that we hold right
Until the day of victory's light
March on, brave England, do not bend,
Fight to live or to the end.
Fight for Britons one and all,
Fight for freedom lest it fall
May thy might all foes appal.

Remember now your leader's spirit,
Suffer pain but do not fear it.
Stand by right and never cover.
Your foes are strong, defy their power
That this may be your finest hour.

When dawns the day, when shines the hour
That sees the full of tyrants' power
Remember then all those that fell,
They fought for you and fought right well,
For England they their lives did sell."

The assembly closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

The unmarried men of Korea are not allowed to wear hats.

"We've got to deliver"

CONDUCTOR: "Working hard, Sam?"

ENGINEER: "You're telling me—but I guess we shouldn't complain—we've got safe jobs, and we're making good money."

CONDUCTOR: "That's right—and we don't have any bombs dropping on us. We've got lots to be thankful for, I guess."

ENGINEER: "It sort of puts it up to us to do all we can. It's our war and we've got to win... wish I could do more."

CONDUCTOR: "Well, one thing we can all do is to buy more War Savings Certificates. Money talks... you've heard that before... and in a modern war money fights."

ENGINEER: "That's little enough to do, isn't it... just lend our money... and for every $4.00 we invest in War Savings Certificates we get back $5.00."

CONDUCTOR: "Yes, I'm investing $30.00 in War Savings every month. At the end of seven and a half years I'll get back $25.00 every month. That'll be handy to have. We must all buy more War Savings Certificates... we've got to deliver."

The help of every Canadian is needed for Victory. In these days of war the thoughtless, selfish spender is a traitor to our war effort. A reduction in personal spending is now a vital necessity to relieve the pressure for goods, to enable more and more labour and materials to be directed to winning the war. The all-out effort, which Canada must make, demands this self-denial of each of us.

'At the Going Down of the Sun, and in the Morning, We Shall Remember Them'

Victoria's largest Armistice Day crowd pays tribute before the War Memorial in Parliament Square to the boys who did not come back.

Thousands Honor Fallen Comrades

The tolling of the Christ Church Cathedral bell ceases. The roar of the big gun sets the sunlit air shuddering. A flutter passes through the thousands gathered near the War Memorial, spreads up Government and Belleville Streets as heads are bared. Victoria stands in silence, honoring the men who died from 1914 to 1918, from 1939 until Remembrance Day, 1941.

A curt command and long lines of sailors, soldiers, air force men snap to attention. Beneath the rugged bronze of the steel-helmeted soldier, half crouched, his bayoneted gun ready, stands a member of each service, a human tableau, steel helmeted, heads bowed. Standards rise from the ranks of veterans close-clustered beside the monument, their khaki, blue and red berets, their medals marking them apart from civilians.

The pain of memory that strikes through the benighted breast of a war widow etches lines on her face. A young woman sobs quietly.

A dog howls. Above the harbor gulls cry a complaint.

A light wind rustles the dead leaves on trees.

THEY GROW NOT OLD

The gun thunders again.

Loudspeakers begin to growl as power is turned on. A voice rises above the stirring of the crowd:

"They shall grow not old as we that are left grow old; age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn. At the going down of the sun, and in the morning, we will remember them."

The plaintive measures of "Flowers of the Forest" wash over the heads of the throng as Pipe Major Donald Cameron plays the lament.

The amplifiers catch and throw out the hymn, "O Valiant Hearts."

A voice rises clear and strong again:

"If God be for us, who can be against us?"

Simply, Captain J. L. W. McLean, M.A., chaplain to the Canadian Reserve Army, intones a prayer.

Hundreds join him in the Lord's Prayer, their words soft-spoken.

Voices rise again in the hymn Silent Tribute.

An R.C.A.F. bugler sounds the Last Post, the notes lingering in the crowded silence. At Revellie the crowd shuffles again, joins in O Canada and God Save the King, and watches quietly as the Lieutenant-Governor lays a wreath at the foot of the memorial, watches as other dignitaries, ex-servicemen, representatives of bereaved mothers, church, army, navy and air force leaders add their tributes to the marble base.

WATCH MARCH PAST

The crowd moves, taking up more suitable positions for the march past to see His Honor take the salute from the Empress Hotel lawn.

To the skirling pipes of the Scottish band the veterans move off, facing sharply right as they pass the saluting base. Behind them comes the navy band, leading a smart detachment of blue-jackets, then the military with its different bands, the khaki columns stretching far down Government, around Belleville and up Mendzie. The R.C.A.F. follows behind its lively band.

All services march without arms for the first time in an Armistice Day parade.

The W.A.C. swings past, preceding naval cadets. A Red Cross ambulance draws up the rear. The parade passes. Boys climb down from the lamp standards. Adults jump to the sidewalk from the Causeway embankment.

The crowd streams across the street. Victoria's Remembrance Day ceremonies organized by the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., are over.

Farther up-town worshippers leave St. Andrew's Cathedral following their special service.

Warspite Men At Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver paid tribute Tuesday to its dead of the First Great War when soldiers, sailors and airmen who are fighting in another war joined veterans, cadets, officers and men of H.M.S. Warspite and citizens in a dignified and colorful ceremony at the city's Cenotaph.

Following the service the members of the three services marched behind veterans through crowded streets in a parade that stretched for blocks through the downtown section of the city. Capt. Douglas Fisher, R.N., commanding H.M.S. Warspite, took the salute at the march past.

V.C.'S LEAD PARADE PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—Two veterans who won Victoria Crosses in the First Great War, Col. C. W. Peck, V.C., of Sidney, and Major John McGregor, V.C., second in command of the 16th Canadian Scottish, led a parade in Prince Rupert's observance of Armistice Day.

Members of the armed services and civilians joined in a parade for a service at the Cenotaph here and Tuesday night the Canadian Legion held its annual banquet.

NANAIMO SERVICE NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—Sixteen hundred men from Camp Nanaimo joined in Remembrance Day services here under Brig. W. G. Colquhoun.

Rev. J. H. Wright, chaplain of Canadian Legion Post 10, conducted the service, while Capt. the Rev. J. S. McGivern, in a short address, declared: "The soldiers of the present salute the soldiers of the past and promise to maintain the tradition of their fathers."

'A Sailor and a Girl' Here's the Happy Ending

(Like a bit out of O. Henry, the original story of Josephine and Bill, the sailor, was published in the Victoria Times, October 14. Now for the sequel.)

NEW YORK (AP)—The story of Josephine Phillips—the Pascale, N.J., girl who slept in subways for a week—and about Bill, a sailor, was headed today for a happy ending.

She was anything but happy a month ago as she sat in the woman's house of detention and told her drab story of an unhappy home, work in a wool mill, a love affair with a man who turned out to be married, and a suicide attempt. The only bright streak in her story was when she talked about Bill. Josephine, 18, thin and pale and with $10 in her purse, came to New York looking for work. Soon her money was gone and, broke and weary, she went to Central Park.

"It was just toward dusk," she said, "I'd been sitting there all day trying to warm up in the sun. When I looked up I saw a sailor standing in front of me. He said 'hello,' but I didn't answer. Then he sat down beside me and said 'you look hungry, like a starved kitten I once found. I'll buy you a dinner.' He took me to a wonderful restaurant and I ate some marvelous chicken and cream gravy and ice cream."

And while she ate, Josephine told the sailor about herself. "I told him everything—and he understood," she said.

The sailor wanted to give her money for a room. She wouldn't take it. He said he'd walk the streets with her the night through and that's what they did. "We'd stop in front of a window and Bill would say, 'Now, there's the dress I'll buy for you. It's yellow and gold like your hair and just as pretty.'"

"We watched the dawn come, turning the buildings on Fifth Avenue a glorious pink," Josephine went on. "We went back to that wonderful restaurant for breakfast. But we didn't eat much. We were too happy. Then we separated. Bill had to go back to his ship. But Bill wouldn't let me go without promising to meet him that night for dinner, at the same bench, in the dusk in Central Park."

But although Josephine was there and waited and waited, Bill didn't come. Finally another sailor appeared with a note. Bill had scrawled in a rush that he had got sailing orders that day. Josephine was weeping over the note when the cops came and took her in.

Later, a cousin, Mrs. Stanley Kurovski of Clifton, N.J., gave Josephine a home. She had read Josephine's story in the New York papers. The story was carried by the wire services and somebody in Philadelphia saw it. Somebody in Hollywood saw it, too.

The sailor, Bill Langford, was on duty at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. He found Josephine again. In Hollywood, film producer David Selznick told him

Duce's Cruisers Run From Fight

LONDON (CP)—An authoritative source said today two Italian 8-inch-gun cruisers "undoubtedly beat a hasty retreat" when British warships attacked an Axis convoy in the Mediterranean early Sunday morning.

He said British warships sank 10 merchant ships and two Italian destroyers at a range of 2,000 to 3,000 yards at a point 220 miles south of Taranto and 160 miles east of Messina.

Two other Italian destroyers which a British submarine torpedoed Sunday were escorting the same two Italian cruisers.

He said the Italian cruisers might have been endeavoring to cover the two convoys which were merging, and added: "In any case they left it to the close escorts to stand the rub. I take it they probably had in mind the Matapan battle. They didn't know the strength of our forces and thought they might look in the other direction."

The British warships, he said, did not pick up any survivors, as they were close to Axis air and sea bases and "had to make a quick getaway."

'Will Fight Eternally For Liberty'—Roosevelt

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt said in an Armistice Day address that Americans have a duty to themselves and to those who died to gain freedom—"to make the world a place where freedom can live and grow into the ages."

The American people believe liberty is worth fighting for, he added, "and if they are obliged to fight they will fight eternally to hold it."

The President spoke from the circular marble amphitheatre in Arlington National Cemetery at services conducted by the American Legion. A few moments before he had stood solemnly at attention while an aide placed a wreath against the tomb of the Unknown Soldier of the first Great War.

This year's observance of Armistice Day, Mr. Roosevelt declared, had a particular significance because in the past Americans were not always able to measure their indebtedness to those who gave their lives in the first Great War.

If the armies of 1917 and 1918 had lost, not a man or woman in America would have wondered why the war was fought, the President said.

"We would have known why liberty is worth defending, as those alone whose liberty is lost can know it. We would have known why tyranny is worth defeating as only those whom tyrants rule can know."

TO PREVENT BONDAGE

Those who gave up their lives in 1917 and 1918 literally did so to make the world safe for democracy, to make it habitable "for decent and self-respecting men."

"They died to prevent then," he said, "the very thing that now, a quarter century later, has happened from one end of Europe to the other. Now that it has happened we know in full the reason why they died."

"We know also what obligation and duty their sacrifice imposes upon us. They did not die to make the world safe for decency and self-respect for five years or 10 or maybe 20. They died to make it safe."

"And if, by some fault of ours who lived beyond the war, its safety has again been threatened, then the obligation and the duty are ours."

The President drew on the words of Abraham Lincoln to see to it "that these dead shall not have died in vain."

Arrangements were made to transmit the President's speech over major domestic networks and by short wave to the rest of the world.

Nazi-dominated Europe Ignores Armistice Day

By THE CANADIAN PRESS Armistice Day generally was just another day of work for Britain and most of German-dominated Europe, where once the powers victorious in the First Great War observed the occasion with great pomp and ceremony.

Britain, anxious not to lose a single day in the production of vital war material, observed the 23rd anniversary of the armistice in unobtrusive fashion Sunday.

Tuesday, hundreds of Londoners found a few minutes to gather informally in Whitehall to lay wreaths beside those sent by the Royal Family and the Prime Minister, while others assembled in Westminster Abbey for a brief service at the grave of the Unknown Soldier.

Canada observed the traditional two minutes' silence by means of a ceremony at the National War Memorial at Ottawa, where 3,000 veterans of the last war assembled around the monument's base. In cities across the Dominion special services were held.

WORK THROUGH DAY

It was business as usual for part of official Washington. The Office of Production Management, directing centre of the vast effort to fill the supply chests of Britain and Russia with American war materials, asked its staff to appear voluntarily at their desks.

The anonymous "Colonel Britton," leader of the British "V" campaign, broadcast from London Monday night an appeal to the peoples of German-occupied countries to make the anniversary "dead march day" and thus slow down Nazi war industries.

The Germans themselves, who regard November 11 as the "day of degradation," forbade, under pain of punishment, any demonstrations in areas under their control.

SERVICE AT VICHY

Memorial services for the dead of all wars were arranged in Vichy, seat of the government in unoccupied France.

Italy celebrated on November 4 the anniversary of the end of fighting against Austria-Hungary in 1918.

On the occasion of the third war-time Armistice Day in London, U.S. Ambassador John G. Winant said in a message to British school children that "if peace could have been pursued as selflessly as men gave generously in the war, permanent peace might have been a reality."

The ambassador told the students to "carry on."

Neither Russia nor Japan ever has celebrated Armistice Day.

MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD AT DUNCAN

DUNCAN—A large crowd assembled at the Memorial Cross for the Armistice service Tuesday morning. The Cowichan District Band played selections, and after the two minutes' silence, O Canada was sung. Scripture reading was given by Rev. W. F. Burns and memorial prayers by Rev. H. T. Archbold. Piper J. Low played the lament, "Flowers of the Forest," and Rev. E. Barnes led in the Lord's Prayer. The Last Post was sounded and the Benediction pronounced by Rev. Canon T. M. Hughes, followed by Revellie and the National Anthem. Members of the Veterans' Home Guard formed a guard of honor at the cross. High School cadets, girls and boys, members of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, the W.A. to the Legion, the Canadian Branch of the Legion, detachment of the Canadian Red Cross Corps, Guides, Brownies, Scouts and Cubs, assembled, and many wreaths were placed on the cross.

Vancouver Seeks Warspite Visit

Vancouver may see the British battleship H.M.S. Warspite when repairs she is undergoing at Bremerton have been completed, Mayor J. W. Cornett intimated after an interview with Capt. Douglas Fisher, the Warspite's commanding officer, Tuesday.

Mayor Cornett said representations were being made to the British Admiralty to get permission for such a trip.

"We haven't seen enough of you yet," the mayor told Capt. Fisher, "we want to see your ship in our harbor."

VICTORIA REPRESENTATIONS

Victoria sources said there was slight hope of the vessel making an official trip to this port. A party of 63 Warspite officers and men will come here later this month.

BONUS PROVISIONS SOON TO BE KNOWN

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Department officials today said details of the procedure for carrying out provisions of section 12B of the wage ceiling policy of the government will be drawn up by a National Labor Board.

Under the section, extending the cost of living bonus to employees of all industries with a few exceptions, any employer who is not paying a bonus must pay one, effective for the first payroll period beginning on or after next February 15.

In the House of Commons Labor Minister McLarty said appointments to the board will be made "almost immediately."

A spokesman said, "we anticipate there will be just about as many applications to the board from employers who want to raise wages to keep their men as their are from disgruntled employees."

"The labor situation is getting so tight that the wage-ceiling policy in some cases may make it hard for some plants to keep workers."

B.C. $380,000 Loan Renewed by Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Renewal of a British Columbia loan of $380,000 from the Dominion has been granted for one year under terms of an order-in-council tabled in the House of Commons Tuesday by Finance Minister Daley.

The loan was to mature November 20, but application for renewal was made and a treasury bill of the province due November 20, 1942, has been accepted.

The order grants authority to the finance minister at his discretion at any time before redemption to assign all or any part of the treasury bill taken as security.

The loan is under the authority of the Unemployment and Agricultural Assistance Act, 1940.

Thumbs Down On Wooden Ships

OTTAWA (CP) — Object of Canada's wartime shipbuilding program is to obtain the maximum number of vessels for use during the war period wherever they can be had "quickest and cheapest." This was the information given by the House of Commons by Munitions Minister Howe.

The minister replied to numerous queries while the House was in committee of the whole last night and went into shipbuilding in some detail, particularly as to location of yards and the possibilities for building wooden ships in Canada.

"My viewpoint about ships is that I want to get the maximum number for use during the war period," said Mr. Howe, after stating he was "less and less enthusiastic" about wooden ships. They were uneconomical, a second-class article "in this day and generation," and would compete, in some measure at least, in materials needed for construction of steel-hulled vessels.

"My purpose in building ships is not to enrich any one section of this country nor to glorify any particular town or city or province," he went on. "My object is to get ships where I can get them quickest and cheapest."

The reasons why we built ships where we have built them is that there were yards there which knew how to build ships and shipways which would take ships. We filled those first. Then we looked around to see where we could stretch that capacity and found that the places where we could stretch it reasonably were very few—only two.

"We found in Vancouver two steel companies which were in a position to build shipways and launch ships without the necessity of robbing existing shipyards of their skilled capacity. The other place we found at Pictou, N.S."

Questioning of the minister followed a discussion during the afternoon sitting when the House heard calls for compulsory selective service from Lt. Col. J. A. Ross, Conservative, Souris, and John R. Macdonald, Conservative, Toronto-Davenport, and urging from W. A. Neill, Independent, Comox-Alberni, for "universal service."

Jean-Francois Pouliot, Liberal, Temiscouata, contributed to the manpower discussion with a protest at exemptions from compulsory military training and home defence service for Britons in Canada, Doukhobors and Mennonites and conscientious objectors.

Howard Green, Conservative, Vancouver South, raised the question of shipbuilding when he asked it, in view of the heavy demand for steel, had the shipbuilding of wooden vessels been thoroughly considered.

Mr. Howe, who previously had made known a cargo-boat building program which calls for 100 in service next year, said steel was short in Canada though production had been doubled since war started. But the situation was improving.

Navy Recruiting 1,000 a Month

OTTAWA—No cruiser program is planned in Canada at present, Navy Minister Macdonald informed the House of Commons Tuesday.

Naval recruiting, he said, is continuing at the rate of 1,000 a month. He denied a suggestion that naval rates of pay were lower than those of other services, but said the whole matter of pay was under consideration by an inter-service committee.

The naval discussion was launched by Opposition Leader Hanson, who questioned Mr. Macdonald on the truth of a report that 2,000 "Penguins" of the naval service sat waiting in Halifax.

Mr. Macdonald told the House that while it was necessary to retain a shore force at least equal to that afloat, he was satisfied there were not 2,000 men idle in Halifax.

The recruiting policy of the department provided no preference for special groups, such as sea cadets or men with experience, but recruiting officers were expected to use their discretion in obtaining the best men available.

Officers for the navy had been provided by Royal Canadian Navy Volunteer Reserve units and from the ranks, many of them learning by one year's experience what would have required three or four years in peacetime.

A comparison of naval pay rates with that of other branches of the service was not unfavorable to the navy, he maintained. A recent discrepancy between pay for naval sub-lieutenants and the corresponding army rank had been corrected. In many instances additional pay was provided in the navy for special duties.

MANNING POOLS

Munition Minister Howe, dealing with manning pools for the merchant marine service, told the members that consideration was being given to opening a pool on the west coast.

Men wishing to serve in the merchant marine may register at these pools, where they are provided with shelter and placed on payrolls. In cases where men were not fully qualified training in a school was available.

Impact Carried Master Off Feet

"It was a miracle that some of us were not killed," said Capt. Jack Gillan, master of the Victoria tug Canada, sunk off Marrowstone Point Sunday morning in collision with the Alaska liner North Coast, on returning here from the scene of the wreck.

"We were struck by the North Coast right astern. I had just been called by Mate H. Anderson and when she hit us the impact was so great that I was thrown from my room right into the pilot house."

Capt. Gillan, who was off watch, was called by the mate when the North Coast appeared to be heading across the Canada's bowline and a collision seemed inevitable after he had sounded the danger signal in warning to the oncoming passenger liner.

There was no fog and there was plenty of room in the channel for clearance," said the tug's master. It was customary, he added, for the overtaking vessel to give a wide berth.

"The North Coast cut right across our bowline, picked it up and got it entangled around its propeller. Almost instantly, she struck us and cut through the stern counter. We did our best to save the tug, hoping to get her close inshore to beach her, but she sank in an hour."

The mate's room was in the path of the liner's swath, but, luckily for him, he was on watch. The cook, W. Warren, was hurt in the confusion as the galley stove was overturned by the impact.

The Canada now rests in 150 feet of water and, according to Harold Elworthy, manager of the Island Tug and Barge Company Ltd., is beyond salvage.

HALIFAX (CP)—A group of Nazi refugees, genuine citizens of the Reich, are in Halifax aboard a Canadian warship, looking for foster-parents.

Pure-bred German dachshund pups, they were kidnapped from a German ship the Canadians "met" at sea. The tars treated the pups more considerably than they did the owners, nursing them carefully on a milk diet.

Now, however, the sailors have to get rid of them. But they plan to be careful about disposing of their pets. If you want one be ready to prove yourself capable—it might even be a good idea to present references.

Made Short Hop

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—Ray Renshaw, Alaska Game Commission flier forced down last Friday in the wild Felly River district, 175 miles north of here, Tuesday made a 15-mile hop to Fort Selkirk, Y.T., after being given supplies and his location by Pilot Herman Joslyn.

Joslyn, flying one of the five searching planes, sighted Renshaw at noon Tuesday and dropped him supplies and a note telling him to start on foot toward Fort Selkirk and that Royal Canadian Mounted Police would meet him.

Renshaw, who was forced to land on a river bar when his fuel ran low as he was flying a new plane north from Seattle, Wash., to Fairbanks, Alaska, had sufficient gasoline left to make the short hop. Before making the forced landing last Friday he radioed that he did not know his location.

Extradition Pact Redrafted

WASHINGTON (CP)—Canada and the United States have started informal discussions with the object of drafting a new treaty governing extradition. It was learned here today.

The treaty now in effect has become archaic, particularly since the outbreak of war.

"Meanwhile, progress has been made in drafting an agreement between the two countries on uniform tax regulations and rates, particularly in respect to income tax."

Move to Avert U.S. Coal Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt, personally intervening again in an attempt to avert a crippling strike in captive coal mines, asked three leaders of the C.I.O. and three officials of major steel companies today to confer with him at the White House Friday.

The captive coal mines are owned by the large steel companies, which depend on them to supply the fuel to produce defense-vital steel.

The issue is a union shop for the United Mine Workers' Union. Among those invited is John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers' president.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK (AP)—Stocks today continued their November retreat under the force of further tax selling, and market leaders gave up fractions to around two points.

Best prices were posted at an irregular opening, but even here declines outnumbered advances. Later, heaviness spread to virtually all departments. Final quotations were generally near the bottoms, with many industrials at New lows for the year.

Volume topped 1,000,000 shares for the first time since September 25.

Among shares pushing into low ground for 1941 were Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Consolidated Edison, North American, General Electric and N.Y. Central.

Canadian stocks were mixed. Dome and Distillers Seagram each lost 1/4, while Hiram Walker gained 1/4 and Dome Mines 1/8.

Antarctic Birds Work Gangster Trick on Penguins

Sixty-six years ago a British explorer visited Kerguelen Island, and later gave the world an account of strange birds he found there.

Kerguelen Island is far down in the southern part of the Indian Ocean, and the strange birds are known as "sheath-bills."

"They would hardly get out of my way when I walked among them," the explorer reported. "They seemed to be greatly interested in me. When I sat on a stone, 12 of them came up close to look me over."

They walked all around me, coming almost within reach. Others flew up from more distant rocks to join them, and alighted to have a good stare."

Since that time, much more has been learned about the sheath-bills. They are found on various other islands of the southern ocean, in and around the Antarctic region. It's cold down that way!

Sheath-bills have snow-white feathers. In size and form they may be compared with plovers, pigeons and seagulls, and it seems they are in some way related to each of those birds.

To make their nests, sheath-bills go to an island and find a hole amid rocks, or else a hole which was scraped out by petrels and then left vacant. In each nest the mother bird lays from one to three eggs.

Sheath-bills fly hundreds of miles over the ocean, but they do not know how to swim and they dare not dive. Their feet are not webbed, which explains why they aren't able to swim.

Yet they find seaweed at the surface of the water, and it supplies them with most of their food. They also eat shrimps and crabs, along with the eggs of other kinds of birds.

We are told that some sheath-bills work a special trick when they go forth to steal eggs from penguins. A mother penguin lays only one egg, but stands guard over it.

The "gangsters of the south," as they have been called, work in pairs. One of them gets in front of a mother penguin and screams in her face. A penguin seems always to be ready for an "argument," so Mrs. Penguin steps forward a bit and talks away in penguin fashion.

Meanwhile the other "gangster" slips behind the mother penguin and picks up the egg. In a moment both birds are in flight, and the penguin—which cannot fly—isn't able to follow them.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

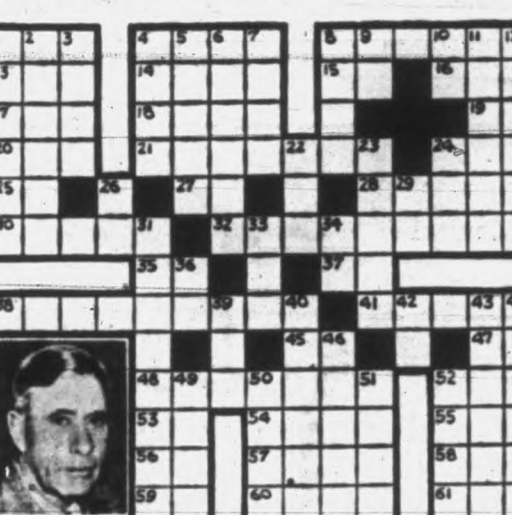

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a university graduate who has been out in the world making her own living for a number of years. Until a few months ago I was engaged to a young man whom I loved very dearly, but whom I gave up because my parents objected to him for reasons that seemed trivial to me. I have never known a happy day since I broke my engagement. Surely at my age and with my experience of life my marriage should have been a matter for me to determine alone, inasmuch as the man is also a college graduate, respectable and comes from a home of good people in average circumstances. I still love him greatly. What would you suggest?

DOROTHY.

Answer—I would suggest that you call the young man back and marry him. I think that the only time when parents have a right to interfere in their children's marriages is when a boy and girl are too young and too immature to know what they want in a husband or wife, or when there is some serious defect in the characters of the man or woman their daughters or sons are in love with, or some hereditary disease in their families that might put a blight on their lives. Certainly any father and mother are justified in doing all they can to keep two adolescents from marrying, or to prevent a son from marrying a girl of loose morals, or a daughter from marrying a drunken ne'er-do-well. Nor are parents called upon to bless the marriage of their children who bring home their husbands and wives for them to support.

DOROTHY DIX.

Young Men of "Y"
Have Full Program

The program for the boys and young men of the Y.M.C.A. is off to a good start for the winter season. It was announced today by Cameron, Gorrie, boys' secretary of the "Y."

Friday night is expected to see more than 200 young men get together to organize for the winter months. It will be a gala night for all who attend with a full program already arranged. Feature event will be a fish hunt in the "Y" pool, in which the competitors will swim after gold fish, the one catching the most to receive a prize.

The work along the boys' line is steadily increasing, and it is our hope that more and more of the boys of the city will get together and apply their energies to constructive, rather than destructive purposes," said Cameron.

Jack Syme, Helen Simpson and Roy Brain are now in Seattle representing the Victoria Y.M.C.A. at the Northwestern Area conference at which "Y" representatives from all of the Northwest areas are meeting to discuss further work and activities of young men in the Y.M.C.A.

Twenty boys of the H-Y club will go to Vancouver on November 22 to represent the Victoria branch of that organization at a meeting there to plan for club policies and future events. It will be a gathering of the older boys of the club.

50% of U.S. Draftees
Found Physically Unfit

By MILTON BRONNER
WASHINGTON — Thoroughly alarmed by the frightening fact that almost 50 per cent of the men called for army service have been physically or mentally unfit, the government has begun a nation-wide rehabilitation program.

At a press conference, President Roosevelt revealed only the army's direct part in the program. Brig.-Gen. Lewis B. Hershey told him nearly 1,000,000 men had been rejected, but it was estimated 200,000 of these could be cured of their disabilities and then taken into camp. These will be retained under orders of the local selective service boards and will be visited by traveling teams of specialists. Where they decide a man's ailments are quickly remediable, he will be given care by local doctors and dentists at the government's expense.

President Roosevelt said he expected to promote a long-range program calling for co-operation by states, counties, cities and towns to remedy a condition in which possibly 50 per cent of all the population is unfit.

McNUTT MOVES IN
One part of the rehabilitation program will be in charge of Paul V. McNutt, administrator of the Federal Security Agency, who, among many other duties, presides over health welfare and related activities. When he revealed figures on rejections by the army, defects and the percentage were as follows: Bad teeth, 20.9; bad eyes, 13.7; heart and artery diseases, 10.6; venereal diseases, 6.3; musculo-skeletal defects, 6.3; mental and nervous defects, 6.3; hernia, 6.2; ear defects, 4.6; bad feet, 4.0; lung troubles, 2.9; all other causes, 17.7.

Shortly after he studied these figures, McNutt appointed a commission of seven physicians and surgeons to examine the facts and to make recommendations. About six weeks ago they reported to him, urging among other things that hereafter if men are classified as unfit for military duty a distinction should be made if the defects are remediable.

When this is the case, they said the letter "R" should be placed after the man's classification. In the first place, the local selective boards all over the country will be asked to send to Washington fuller details about the rejected men. After these facts are collated, McNutt with physicians, surgeons and dentists will outline a bill for congress with an estimate of the expense of such a big rehabilitation program. The cost of it will be submitted to the President and the Budget Bureau. If approved, a rehabilitation bill carrying an appropriation will then go to the House Appropriations Committee.

The big difference between the 200,000 deemed remediable and thus fit for future military service, and the balance of 800,000 will be this: The former will be subject to orders by the selective service boards and will have to undergo remedial treatment. The others will not be forced to take the free treatment offered them, it will be voluntary.

after the man's classification index. Also in the printed forms for reports by doctors for the local draft boards, space should be left for the examining doctors to state whether in their opinion defects were remediable or correctable. These things would serve as guides to authorities in Washington.

In cases where the men were deemed not easily curable, the doctors recommended that a space should be left in the reports for rejected men to state whether they were willing to undergo treatment to alleviate their defects, whether they were able to pay for such treatment. The commission recognized that many men probably could not afford to pay for surgical or dental care and therefore they suggested that federal financial aid might be necessary.

PROGRAM INCOMPLETE
Out of the 1,000,000 young men already rejected, the President plans for the army to take care of 200,000. McNutt will try to work out a plan to take care of most of the remaining 800,000 and the future rejects as the army calls up men for examination. But many weeks will elapse before a program is fully evolved.

In the first place, the local selective boards all over the country will be asked to send to Washington fuller details about the rejected men. After these facts are collated, McNutt with physicians, surgeons and dentists will outline a bill for congress with an estimate of the expense of such a big rehabilitation program. other races. Its simple, direct utterances are so obvious that it is either dismissed as of no value, or else distorted in an attempt to find the "catch." The truth, of course, is that like the English rose, its fragrance comes from within. Lawrence Brown, the accompanist, collaborated with Robeson in his own arrangements of several spirituals.

GOOD INTERPRETATION
Russian music with which we are familiar is so charged with the folk lore of the people, that it is not surprising that Robeson, with his deep personal attachment to that country, should be completely at ease when he sings it. His performance of the "Prayer of Boris" definitely awakened memories of Chaplin in this role, a tribute in itself. If his singing of "The Flea" was a little more restrained than we are accustomed to hear, it was a relief from the vulgarity of the usual performance, and quite possibly much nearer the true reaction of the Russian mind.

Encores were given with such generosity to the enthusiastic audience which overflowed on to the stage, that they constituted another program. Yesterday Paul Robeson sang to an enthusiastic audience at the Naval Barracks.

Plan to Replace Bible
With 'Mein Kampf'

STOCKHOLM (ONA) — An intensified program aiming at swift annihilation of all Christian churches in Germany has been formulated by the office of Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, chief of ideological education for the Nazi party.

Under the program, the National Reich Church, referred to as N.R., would replace the Christian cross throughout Germany with the Nazi swastika and put Hitler's "Mein Kampf" and a sword on all altars instead of the Bible.

The 30-point anti-Christian manifesto has been drafted at a time when the battle between all Christian churches and National Socialist leaders has reached a new climax.

This month the Bishop of Munster made public speeches denouncing the office of Dr. Rosenberg, author of the pagan volume, "Myth of the Twentieth Century."

Announcing a plan "to gain possession of the last German soul," the National Reich Church warned that "N.R. can not and will not tolerate other churches or church-like organizations or clubs."

"N.R. is determined unwaveringly and by all means to annihilate the Christian faith," the proclamation said.

"N.R. demands that the printing and delivery of the Bible be immediately stopped in Germany."

WOULD SEIZE CHURCH PROPERTY
"N.R. demands immediate transfer of the property of all churches and confessions to the state."

No scribes, chaplains, pastors or clergy will be permitted in N.R., only National Reich orators, who will be state officials.

"N.R. ceremonies will take place only on Saturday evenings. In N.R. no act may take place in the undignified kneeling position."

Baptism of German children with holy water is "rejected." Under the new form of baptism parents would hold the child before the altar on which are the sword and "Mein Kampf," swear that they are "probably Aryan" and dedicate the child "zum Deutschen Volk." (to the German folk).

Confirmation and communion would be abolished. Marriage would take place by a repetition of the oath of loyalty to the right hand on the sword.

Robeson Charms
Great Audience

Victoria's musical season got away to a flying start Monday evening with Paul Robeson the chief attraction at the Royal Victoria Theatre. Miss Rockmore added a spice of mystery with the "Theremin," a new source of sound production that created a sensation some years ago.

Paul Robeson is a unique figure in that he combines three qualities which are common enough when found by themselves, but which are rarely developed in a single person. He is a singer with a finely attuned mind, a singer with impeccable diction, and a singer with an acute sense of rhythm in its fullest degree—a rare thing indeed. But embracing all these qualities is a simplicity of soul that rises to such great heights that he endears himself to his audience by sheer human appeal.

His program, with the exception of a group of Moussorgsky songs, was essentially of the folk song and national song type. It is amazing how singers neglect these riches; the possible explanation is that they are so fully charged with real human qualities which is beyond their comprehension. Robeson sang Cuban negro, American negro, Andalusian, Hebrew and British folk songs to such perfection that their ordinary, everyday stories found an instant echo in the hearts of his enthusiastic audience.

Only once was there a suggestion of bluish, in the first verse of "All Through the Night," when his sudden increase of speed in the fifth line destroyed the essential peacefulness of the song. Parry's "Jerusalem," too, lacked its inherent strength by over-dramatization. This brings to the fore the fact that British music, with but a few exceptions, is seldom understood and appreciated by
